U.S. Trade Deficit Dips

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The U.S. foreign trade deficit—a major factor in President Nixon's new economic program — continued into a fourth month in July, the longest stretch in the nation's history, it was disclosed today.

The Commerce Department reported the United States imported $304.1 million more from other countries than it shipped abroad in July, raising the trade deficit to $676.4 million for the first seven months of the year.

Nixon's decision to let the dollar "float" on the international market and to impose a 10 per cent tariff on a wide array of imports was taken to alleviate the deficit problem.

There were these other developments at home and abroad in connection with the 90-day wage-price freeze.

—The dollar dropped sharply on British foreign currency markets, depreciating nearer the target of the Nixon devaluation goal of more than 10 per cent in relation to other strong currencies such as the mark and yen.

—L. Patrick Gray III, the Justice Department's chief enforcer of the wage-price freeze, predicted economic curbs would be extended beyond the 90-day freeze and said labor leaders will "see the handwriting on the wall."

—The leader of 120 small independent unions, Roger M. Rettig, denounced the administration's approach to wage-price controls, charging they

Nader Report Raps Taxes, Land Sales

Asks Reforms To Halt Vanishing Open Space

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SAN FRANCISCO — Abolition of California's property taxes, tax shelters for land speculators, planning commissions, "snob zoning" and all school and special district was called for yesterday by Ralph Nader. (Other Nader report stories, page 6, 7.)

The sweeping program to eliminate economic pressures that devour California's vanishing open lands came in the final chapters of a report on the state by a team of "Nader's raiders."

One of the three final chapters also scored the state's transportation system for being "captured by the auto-highway complex."

The report concluded that "minimal restructuring" of local government must include creation of new boundaries "based on natural community boundaries" and run by elected officials visible to the electorate. The present system of fragmented and overlapping special purpose governmental units makes it impossible for the voters to know who their elected officials are, the report said.

Fewer local officials with clearer responsibilities for all local functions, including education, would make the system more accountable and responsive to the people, the Nader team said.

Nader, in a press conference at the Hilton Hotel, also scored the lack of accountability by public officials for earthquake protection. "If there are tens of thousands of casualties, will any official be fired or demoted?" he asked.

He said the state should be spending 10 times more than it does on earthquake safety, and that some official should be named accountable for the program.

The massive report, almost 1,000 pages, has been released in three stages since last week. It was compiled by 23 researchers over 14 months, and dealt with all aspects of water, power and land in California.

Nader said California was selected for the study because it typified all problems of land use and because its administration "touted the state as the best administered in the nation."

Broad charges of collusion between public officials and land developers appear throughout the report, but few individuals were named. Exceptions were charges that former Gov. Edmund G. Brown, Atty. Gen. Thomas Lynch and Asst. Atty. Gen. Charles O'Brien aided land developers in exchange for campaign contributions.

The report, however, did not document these charges.

The anonymity of these charges was defended by the director of the report, Robert Fellmeth, a 25-year-old attorney. He said the team's sources "didn't want their names disclosed."

Nader interjected that many of the charges in the report "will probably be of use to a number of grand juries." He said that several grand juries already had asked for copies of the report.

Nader criticized California newsmen for failing to report adequately "trends and the impact" of land use in the state.

(Most of the material collected by Nader's investigators has been published and debated, but never before compiled so completely in one document.)

In a section citing the property tax as "a political shell game," the report urged its abolition as too unfair a tax. One way to replace property tax revenue would be to tax the increase in land values resulting from public works such as roads, the report suggested.

The existing system encourages speculators who profit from public works without any expense of their own. This "opens the door for immense corruption since money is to be privately made depending on the ability of landowners to influence the location of public works," it warned.

Another tax dodge, amounting to one-third of the gain on real estate profits, is the federal tax of capital gains at one-half the rate of so-called ordinary income, the report said.

Also "an open temptation to corruption," it said, was the need of county assessors to raise election campaign funds. The report asserted "there is evidence of systematic favoritism for certain types of properties owned by certain kinds of corporations.

"Predictably, it is these corporations who provide the brunt of campaign contributions" for assessors, it said.

The report cited Gov. Ronald Reagan's sale of his own land for just under $2 million. The market value, however, had been assessed by the county at less than one-half of its sale price, the report said.

"The governor was either overpaid for the property by the large corporate purchase or he paid insufficient taxes," it said, adding that under current law he could not be assessed for "this back tax debt."

Utilities, on the other hand, are "immensely overtaxed," but this burden is passed to the public through increased utility bills, the report said.

Urging abolition of planning commissions, the report said they commonly were controlled by campaign supporters of county supervisors. "This means that planning commissions are stacked with developers, land speculators and chamber of commerce cheerleaders," it declared.

As a result, planning commissions are "very susceptible to pay-offs and corruption," the Nader report concluded.

The state's devotion to planning needs, the report observed, "can be surmised from the size of the State Office of Planning — two persons."

The report attacked what it termed "snob zoning" by suburbs to keep out poor people. "Rather than requiring balanced development in both cities and suburbs, we spend billions on transportation systems. Rather than making the cities more livable, we make them more accessible to suburban commuters.

"Rather than dispersing a variety of income groups, we have concentrated them in areas where they cannot work."

To end this expensive separation of the poor and affluent,

Patrick Clothing Firm Is Charged

By C. P. McCARTHY

A suit — charging that a men's clothing company headed by Marin cosmetics magnate William Penn Patrick has been using a false sales pitch to lure prospective distributors — was filed yesterday in Marin Superior Court.

The suit was filed by the state Attorney General's office against Alexander Taylor Inc., which has offices at 1800 Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael.

Judge Samuel W. Gardiner of superior court yesterday issued a temporary restraining order against the company and set a hearing on the state's request for a permanent injunction for Sept. 8.

Patrick, founder and chairman of Holiday Magic Cosmetics of San Rafael, is not named as a defendant in the case, but Deputy Atty. Gen. Diana C. Woodward said that when she served papers on the company at the Lincoln Avenue address yesterday, she was informed that Patrick had been named chairman of the board of Alexander Taylor two weeks ago.

She said Patrick would be added to the list of defendants.

The attorney general's suit charges that the company has "created an endless chain market scheme" in which it recruits investors into the company by telling them they can earn large amounts of money by bringing in other investors.

The firm was incorporated in

MASTER PLAN

Case Histories Of Bad Planning

By JEFF GREER
(Last of four articles)

"Can the Last Place Last? is the exotic title for the preliminary draft of Marin's proposed countywide master plan.

The name derives from Lew Welch's poem, "The Song Mount Tamalpais Sings," which reads:

"Centuries and hordes of us piling up
And then going back to get some more.
This is the last place, there
Is nowhere else to go."

The preliminary, 144-page master plan report keeps the "Last Place" theme in mind as it reviews four case histories of Marin County planning that failed or teetered on the brink.

The report asks "where did the environmental quality go" for Richardson Bay, Oceana Marin on the coast, Corte Madera Creek and Strawberry Cove.

The history of Richardson is called a case of "squatting, squalor and specific plans." Marin has had an adopted plan for the bay since 1959, but "not one objective was realized and .... a houseboat squatter colony" grew up in the last dozen years, the report finds.

The area still is plagued by the same problems of much-divided private ownership of underwater lots, pollution by houseboat occupants and on-shore sewage plants, and bickering between public agencies over dredging and filling, the report declares.

Oceana Marin is "a case of too little and too late," the master planners warn. The second-home subdivision north of Dillon Beach is cited as proof that "impassioned pleas about the irreplaceability of special environments isn't going to mean much until the political decision-makers have got some real alternative choices besides accommodating growth on the proposition that 'a man who pays taxes has to be able to do something with his land'."

The developers were granted permission to build nearly 700 units on 688 acres, despite experts' warnings that the area was subject to earthquake, landslide, drainage and other problems.

Guard Says Jackson On Death Path

By MARY LEYDECKER

Soledad Brother George Jackson believed that "he was going to swing" for the murder of a prison guard, a San Quentin guard has told the Independent-Journal. (Another San Quentin story, photos, page 19.)

The officer offered Jackson's fear of being convicted and then executed as a motive for an escape attempt, which officials believe was set in motion prematurely Saturday after a guard spotted a small gun in a wig Jackson was wearing.

The guard, who said he had talked to Jackson last week before the abortive escape attempt, said that the convict was convinced that he would be convicted and sentenced to death in connection with the murder of a Soledad Prison guard.

He and the other two Soledad Brothers were due to be tried soon in San Francisco on a charge of murdering the guard in 1970.

(The remaining two, Fleeta Drumgo and John Clutchette, were in court in San Francisco today for a pretrial hearing.)

Although Jackson's attorney, John Thorne, said after Saturday's violence, that his client was confident he would be acquitted, the guard said this was not true.

Jackson was convinced the state had an ironclad case against him, the guard said.

During Saturday's violence three guards and two inmates were killed as well as Jackson, who was felled by a blast from a wall guard's gun as he ran from the prison's adjustment center.

(It was reported today that the most seriously injured of three guards who were attacked but escaped death, Charles Breckenridge, 21, was in "satisfactory" condition at Marin General Hospital's intensive care unit.)

The I-J has also learned that Breckenridge gasped, "Yogi did it," as he stumbled out of the adjustment center with a severe throat wound.

Sources at the prison said that "Yogi" was a nickname for Hugo Pinnel, the convict in whose cell an Afro wig was found in a toilet Tuesday.

Pinnel is being held at San

Inmate's Mother Ties Up Hearing

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A hearing for the two surviving "Soledad Brothers" erupted into a shouting melee today when the mother of one of the prisoners began screaming at the judge.

The police riot squad was called in and cleared the courtroom, using clubs to move the crowd out.

The mother of defendant John Clutchette began shouting at Superior Court Judge Carl Allen from the spectators section. When a bailiff moved towards her to remove her from the room, a male spectator rose and interceded.

At that point the police riot squad, which was standing by during the proceedings because of earlier violence, moved in with clubs and cleared out spectators.

Women in the crowd were weeping and screaming that they had been beaten.

Clutchette and Fleeta Drumgo were charged along with black revolutionary George Jackson with hurling a guard at Soledad State Prison over a third-floor balcony to his death last year.

Clutchette and Drumgo, separated from the spectators by the bullet-proof glass, were quickly whisked to holding cells.

Today's hearing had been set

Nixon Firm On Import Tax; Retaliation Threat

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) —President Nixon plans to hold the line on his 10 per cent border tax on U.S. imports as a "totally justified" measure, despite threats of a retaliatory trade way by irate European nations.

The President, working at the Western White House, was in close touch with his fiscal experts who sought to avoid a monetary confrontation among major U.S. trading partners.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler told newsmen the President believes his moves are valid under the 1947 General Agreement on Trade and Tariff (GATT).

"Because we have been faced with a trade deficit and other nations have been faced with a surplus we cannot conceive that they would take counter steps against the United States," Ziegler said.

The chief executive was concentrating heavily this week on major foreign policy problems.

The situation surrounding the South Vietnamese presidential election on Oct. 3, with the possibility that President Nguyen Van Thieu will be the only active candidate, was a matter of concern to Nixon.

But the White House remained silent on the political crisis in Saigon which has resulted from the refusal of Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky and Gen. Duong Van Minh to run. Both have charged election rigging.

Ziegler declined to say, in response to a question, whether the U.S. still believes a "fair and free election" is possible. "We're still studying it," he said. "We intend to approach the elections from a position of neutrality."

He added that it was "totally consistent" for U.S. Ambassa-

Regional Water Board Rejects Nader Report—Just Old Findings

I-J Special Report

BERKELEY — Criticism of water pollution control in the Ralph Nader report on California today was rejected by the Regional Water Quality Control Board.

Board chairman Homer H. Hyde of Campbell said the Nader report was based on outdated data. He said the report ignored the fact that the regional board has issued 34 cease and desist orders against polluters since the state's new pollution act became effective January 1970.

Underscoring its continued tough enforcement policy, the board this morning also earmarked 29 dischargers for possible formal enforcement action.

The list included Las Gallinas Valley Sanitary District, and the Tiburon and Sausalito-Marin City Sanitary districts.

Board action against the two southern Marin dischargers included a possible ban on all new construction, would blanket the entire south end of the county with a construction ban previously applied against Mill Valley and the Richardson Bay Sanitary District.

Ross Valley Sanitary District also is under a construction ban imposed last month by the board.

Board vice chairman William C. Weber of San Mateo, citing the Marin construction bans, said he doubted the Southern Marin dischargers would agree with Nader's charges.

The report by "Nader's Raiders" claimed that the state's water pollution control was "written by polluters and for polluters weakened further by nonenforcement." Nader termed the law merely a "public relations venture."

Nader also charged that 65 per cent of the sewage dischargers under the San Francisco Bay Regional board "are open outlaws, and have not even filed required reports on their water pollution."

Weber said that he had believed Nader was a friend of the campaign to improve the environment. The report however, was "destructive", Weber said.

The vice chairman also criticised Nader's researchers for failing to interview any member of the regional board.

He challenged Nader to come up with evidence that the regional board had failed to do its job.

Edward S. Dibble, a member of the state Water Resources Control Board, said that water quality in San Francisco Bay already showed definite improvement under the 1970 law.

The 29 dischargers, found by the board staff to be violating antipollution requirements, were warned by the board that it will seek the maximum $6,000-a-day fine against them for all past violations of the board's cease and desist orders.

Hanoi: U. S. At Fault In Elections

PARIS (UPI)—North Vietnam said today the United States had turned the South Vietnamese presidential elections into "a comedy" and all anyone needed to see it was a ticket to Saigon.

"The White House is putting on a comedy in Saigon," said Xuan Thuy, Hanoi's chief negotiator as he entered the 127th session of the Vietnam peace talks.

"It is staged and directed by the U.S. Embassy. All that is needed to see it is an airline ticket to Saigon—the rest is free," he said.

Any hopes this session of the deadlocked conference might make some headway were set back when the Viet Cong's chief negotiator, Madame Nguyen Thi Binh, failed to attend the conference for the second week in a row.

A spokesman for the Viet Cong's provisional revolutionary government (PRG) said Madame Binh was still "taking a rest."

The Viet Cong echoed Hanoi's charge that the United States was responsible for rigging the Saigon elections to be held in October.

Heavy Wave Of Red Attacks In Vietnam

SAIGON (UPI)—Allied military spokesmen today reported the sharpest wave of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong attacks in three months across South Vietnam but said it was too early to determine if a Communist offensive was underway.

Military spokesmen reported at least 38 of what they termed enemy-initiated incidents overnigth against South Vietnamese positions across the country.

The action cost the Communists at least 120 killed with government casualties of at least 19 dead and 39 wounded.

U.S. command spokesmen reported two ground clashes involving American GIs and said two Americans were killed and four wounded. A shelling attack against a U.S. 11th Armored Cavalry unit 27 miles northwest of Saigon caused light casualties with no fatalities, the spokesman said.

The 220,100-man American fighting force remaining in Vietnam stayed on special alert status because of the possibility of stepped-up Communist attacks to coincide with Sunday's South Vietnamese National Assembly election and the political turmoil connected with the Oct. 3 presidential election.

Military sources said 2,000 more South Vietnamese troops were standing by to move into Saigon Friday to bolster security for the election Sunday. Most of the soldiers are recruits fresh from nine weeks of basic training, the sources said.

The U.S. command meanwhile announced that 10 Americans were killed in battle in Vietnam last week for the lowest weekly combat toll since Aug. 28, 1965 when six GIs died. It brought to 45,452 the number of Americans killed in the Indochina war since Jan.. 1, 1961.

Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, spokesman for the South Vietnamese command, said the 38 "incidents" overnight were the highest since May 29 when 48 were reported.

The South Vietnamese command said the overall level of action across the country increased last week by 65 per cent with most of the fighting centered along the allied defense line below the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ).

The U.S. command said today that half the ammunition stored in a mile square compound at Cam Ranh Bay was destroyed Wednesday in a Viet Cong commando attack that set off 13 hours of explosions.

Julie's Goal Blocked By Broken Toe

ATLANTIC BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Julie Nixon Eisenhower, "one heck of a fine individual who wanted to do something for her fellow human beings," has been blocked from that goal by a broken toe.

Ray Bailey, principal at Atlantic Beach Elementary School where Julie was to have taught the third grade, said it appeared the injury suffered while preparing for classes would prevent her from coming back as a teacher.

The Western White House at San Clemente, which was handling all queries on the matter, said Julie was "deeply disappointed."

"This girl had some quality—it is hard for me to pinpoint — that has caused this faculty to jell and to say 'This is someone we really think a lot of.' To me it was kind of unusual for a new person to be able to convey that type of feeling.

"I think this was one of the reasons we were more impressed with her than the fact she was the President's daughter. She was one heck of a fine individual who wanted to do something for her fellow human beings."

Police Break Up Anti-U.S. Rally

Tran Tuan Nham, whose party symbol is a picture of President Nixon wearing an Adolf Hitler-style mustache, was arrested along with four of six demonstrators. Some 300 spectators watched the brief scuffle with police.

In the presidential campaign for the Oct. 3 election, meanwhile, President Nguyen Van Thieu's office said he will delay until after Sunday's parliamentary balloting any statements on the nation's political crisis in which he is the only candidate.

Thieu told his campaign workers Wednesday that the campaign will go ahead. He conferred earlier with U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth C. Bunker, who has warned Thieu that a one-man race will undermine American support for South Vietnam.

Supreme Court officials said Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky is trying to get his name removed from the ballot. Ky withdrew from the race last week but his name is still on the ballot through a technicality. The vice president was reported to be concerned that if his name stays on the ballot Thieu can argue he actually has some competition.

Court officials said the deadline for removing candidates names from the ballot was last Tuesday but Ky's aides argued that the vice president made known his intention Monday.

The Saigon Election Committee opened a downtown headquarters where votes for the assembly will be tallied. The committee said it would schedule trips for newsmen to the provinces "so that you can determine for yourselves if our elections are honest or not."

The South Vietnamese government protested to the International Control Commission (ICC) what it said was "propaganda and terrorist acts directed against the coming lower house election.

Fund For 13

CHICAGO (UPI)—Police organizations across the country planned to launch a fund drive today for the defense of 12 policemen who were indicted, along with State's Attorney Edward Hanrahan and one of his assistants, on charges of conspiracy to obstruct justice in a 1969 Black Panther party police raid.

Members of the Chicago lodge of the Fraternal Order of Police met Wednesday with representatives of the Chicago Patrolmens Association, the Chicago Police Sargeant's Association, the Lieutenant's Association and the Chicago Police Pension Protection Association to formulate plans for the defense fund drive.

Lodge President Joseph J. LeFevour told the group he had been contacted by the national president of the F.O.P. who guaranteed the full support of the organization's 800 lodges across the country.

SALT Pact Near

LONDON (UPI) — The official Russian publication Soviet Weekly said today early agreement between Russia and the United States on curbing antimissile defenses now seems possible.

Soviet weekly said "preliminary clarification of positions has been completed and mutually acceptable, minimum conditions are known" at the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) in progress in Helsinki.

"All this is just one small aspect of the general question of limiting strategic arms—but it is one on which it seems possible to reach an early agreement," it added.

New Cabinet

ATHENS (UPI) — Premier George Papadopoulos installed a new 37-man cabinet today in the most sweeping government shakeup since the 1967 coup that brought him to power. A number of colonels in the cabinet were moved out to make room for civilian economic experts.

Papadopoulos retained for himself the ministries of Foreign Affairs, Defense and Government Policy but he downgraded two of his most powerful colleagues, and others were shifted to non-cabinet jobs.

Deputy Premier Stylianos Pattakos lost his post as Minister of the Interior (in charge of police) and Nicholas Makarezos lost his post as economic czar and was named second deputy premier.

More Battling

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—A gunman shot two British soldiers today in a seesaw battle with a crowd over the building of barricades in Armagh, an Army spokesman said. The soldiers were not wounded seriously.

The incident came as an explosion damaged an Electricity Board showroom in Dungannon. The board's main Belfast office was bombed Wednesday, and the official wing of the Irish Republican Army (IRA) condemned the bombing as "criminal and murderous" today in a statement that blamed the blast in the provisional wing of the illegal organization.

Academic Career

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The first man to walk on the moon, Neil A. Armstrong, is leaving the space program to become a teacher and researcher at the University of Cincinnati.

His decision appeared to have been prompted by at least two motives: A long-standing desire to begin an academic career, and the practical fact that his chances of getting another trip into space were minimal.

"People who know me well know that for a long time I've talked about going back into the academic community," Armstrong told a news conference Wednesday after resigning from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. "This seemed to be the right time."

Indian Flooding

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Flood waters spawned by monsoon rains swirled higher in the cholera- stricken Indian town of Malda today and many persons were stranded on rooftops. Flooding in neighboring East Pakistan left 300,000 persons homeless and damaged nearly a million acres of cropland.

Indian government officials said the level of the flooded Ganges River and many of its tributaries was beginning to drop in West Bengal state,

FAIR UNREST — A Sacramento police officer handcuffs a youth during the second night of rioting at the California State Fair. About 300 officers were called to handle rioters last night — the second night of rock-throwing clashes by youths. (UPI Telephoto)

Youths Stage Another Attack On Fairgrounds

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) —The California State Fair was reduced to a battleground for the second straight night Wednesday in a renewed clash between police and rock-hurling youths.

At least six patrol cars were shattered by rocks and bottles and two others overturned by roving bands of juveniles in the second consecutive night of trouble at the fair.

Stunned fairgoers, stampeding for the exits, found themselves caught for a time in a crossfire between police tear gas volleys and debris being hurled at officers.

One officer was struck in the head by a rock and taken to a Sacramento hospital. He was identified as motor patrolman Robert Speitch. His head wounds were not believed to be serious.

More than 300 officers, aided by a National Guard helicopter radioing instructions from overhead, moved in to scattered the youths with tear gas volleys and were met by a hail of rocks and bottles.

Through it all, the midway remained open. But the remainder of the fair was closed early when the trouble flared anew. Officers had previously sealed off the Exposition Center where the trouble first began Tuesday night.

Several officers braved the flying debris to rescue three small children caught with their father between two long lines of opposing forces. They grabbed the children and carried them to safety in a nearby paddy wagon.

Some of the tear gas volleys fell short of their mark, landing amidst fairgoers. Mothers, clutching babies, ran from the fumes, rubbing their eyes. Two men on crutches hobbled away.

Police reported at least two arrests in the second night of fighting and more were expected to follow. Nineteen persons were arrested Tuesday night in the initial outbreak of trouble apparently touched off when juveniles began throwing rocks at lighting fixtures.

Oil Slick Near President's Summer Home Is Shore Bound

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI)—The U.S. navy rushed construction today of a giant oil skimming device as a 30-mile long oil slick off the Southern California coast appeared to move toward the shore.

The slick originally was estimated at 1,200 gallons by the Coast Guard, but Navy officials now say 299,446 gallons leaked from one of its oil tankers last Friday.

So far eight miles of oceanfront have been affected as parts of the slick break off and balls of tar-like fuel drift ashore. Included in that area is President Nixon's private beach at the Western White House here.

The slick was about two miles offshore, the navy said, compared to five miles a day ago. "It appears to be moving in a northeasterly direction," a Navy spokesman said, which would be straight towards the shore at this point.

A 100-man detachment of sailors and marines labored Tuesday and Wednesday along the affected areas, gathering up the hunks of heavy bunker fuel oil, semi-solidified by its dunking in the cool ocean waters.

Nixon walked his polluted beach and "was concerned about the effects it would have" on the wildlife of the area, said press secretary Ronald Ziegler.

The President, who orginarily prefers to swim in the ocean, swam in his pool instead, aides said.

Forrest Smith, a former vice president of the Standard Oil Co. who worked on the disastrous San Francisco Bay Oil spill last January, was called in by the Navy to advise on the construction of the oilskimming device. Smith is now associated with Clean Bay Inc.

The ocean-going device is being constructed at the Navy Public Works Center in San Diego and is expected to be finished late today.

The oil was discharged by error from the Navy tanker Manatee last Friday while it refueled the carrier USS Ticonderoga off San Clemente Island. The Navy appointed a captain to investigate the incident to determine, among other findings, whether disciplinary action is called for.

Minnie J. Smith, 802 Western Avenue, Petaluma, told police her 1963 Chevrolet was stolen yesterday while parked at the Roger Wilco parking lot on East Washington Street. It had license HAP 317.

Thant In Appeal For Refugees

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

U.N. Secretary General U Thant sent a note to Israel protesting its drive to clean up refugee camps in the occupied Gaza Strip and demanded that Arab families resettled elsewhere by the Israelis be returned to the camps, Israeli newspapers said today.

The Israeli Foreign Ministry confirmed it had received a note from Thant but would not reveal its contents.

In a move to eliminate terrorists from the former Egyptian strip between Irael and the occupied Sinai Peninsula, Israel in recent weeks has destroyed homes and bulldozed wide paths in the strip. Israel moved about 2,000 families from the area to new homes in the Sinai's El Arish and the occupied Jordanian West Bank.

The newspaper Yediot Aharonot said Thant's note was dated Aug. 18. Ha'Aretz said the note severely criticised the resettlement program and demanded the return of all refugees to the camps.

More than 300,000 Arabs live in the strip, where most of them fled from their homes in Palestind during the 1948 Arab-Israeli war.

Yediot said Thant plans to publish the note shortly. Both newspapers said foreign ministry officials are studying the note for a possible reply to the charges.

In Jerusalem Wednesday night, Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir said the Libyan military reinforcement of Egypt through a projected loose unification of Egypt, Libya and Syria would not enable the Egyptians to defeat Israel in war "because we are here to stay."

"The Egyptians did not pass in 1948 nor in 1956 nor in 1967," she said. "In spite of the latest resolution taken in Damascus and the addition of the 'mighty' Libyan force, they will not pass this time either because we are here to stay."

Within hours after Mrs. Meir spoke, a three-foot section of track on the Jerusalem-Tel Aviv Railway was blown up today in what police said was the first act of sabotage on the line since immediately after the 1967 Middle East war.

Police sources said railway maintenance workers discovered the damage on a section of track eight miles southwest of Jerusalem where it approaches the edge of a sheer cliff. It was found several hours before the first passenger train was to depart Tel Aviv for Jerusalem. Troops and border police searched the area for suspects.

Referring to the projected Sept. 1 federation of Egypt, Libya and Syria, which some Israeli officials regard as a step toward the renewal of hostilities in the Middle East, Mrs. Meir said the Arabs "are talking nonsense in claiming we are foreigners here.

"We belong in this part of the world not only by virtue of historical rights but by virtue of all that we have done and sacrificed in this country in recent years and in every single day we have lived here," she told the 70th annual convention of the Jewish National Fund.

The organization raised money in the early 1900s to buy land in Palestine, mostly from the Arabs and their Turkish rulers, for the settlement of Jews.

'Showman' Ted Lewis Is Dead

NEW YORK (UPI)—Ted Lewis, the "showman" who never failed to charm an audience when he asked, "Is everybody happy?", died Wednesday of a heart attack at his New York City apartment. He was 80.

Lewis, who wore his battered top hat through the great years of vaudeville, the big bands, and then into the television era, was best known for his quiet, throaty renditions of "Me and My Shadow" and "When My Baby Smiles at Me."

Primarily a jazzman in the 20s and 30s, Lewis had no trouble leaving the big bands behind and going out as a solo performer after World War II. He appeared often on television variety shows and in Las Vegas and other showplaces until his retirement in 1965.

But retiring came hard to Lewis. He ice-skated in Central Park during the winter and played cards at the Friars Club several nights a week, but the inactivity was difficult for a man who had been before the public most of his life.

"Once show business gets in your blood, as it has in mine, it's something that you just can't get away from. It's my life. It's everything," he said in a recent interview in his memorabilia-filled Central Park West apartment.

During the past five years he also missed the friends, and fellow-troopers, who had died: people like Eddie Cantor, Al Jolson and, probably most of all, Sophie Tucker.

"When this wonderful woman passed on," he said of the "Red Hot Momma" of show business, "I felt like half of me was gone."

Born Theodore Leopold Friedman on June 6, 1891, in Circleville, Ohio, Lewis considered himself the "black sheep" in the family. His father, a jeweler, put three other sons through college.

But Lewis refused to go that route. Instead, he ran away from home to find work at carnivals and county fairs.

"I sold cotton candy, blew up gas balloons and slept with the other roustabouts around the carnival," he recalled.

He gravitated to New York and hit the big time in 1911 when he was with a trio appearing at Hammerstein's Theater. By then he was no longer Theodore Friedman since a theater owner in South Carolina had decided previously the name was too long for the marquee and changed it to Lewis.

Then, in 1916, Lewis won a top hat in a dice game. He had it ever since.

"It was second hand when I got it and this hat has been stitched, restitched, and doublelined, relined, and sewed," he said. "I don't think a piece of the original hat is left."

He once estimated that it cost him 75 cents a week to keep the old top hat in shape.

His other trademark, he said, came to him when he opened at Rector's restaurant on Broadway in 1917.

"After the opening number something told me to say, 'Is everybody happy?' and the house came down," he said. It became his opening remark everytime he stepped out on a stage.

School Strike In Illinois Town

DECATUR, Ill. (UPI)—Public schools in Decatur have not opened, in the first school strike in the central Illinois city's history and what is believed one of the first strikes in the nation since President Nixon announced his economic program.

More than 800 of Decatur's 1,000 teachers failed to report for classes Wednesday because their contract has not been settled.

In nearby Rantoul, about 70 teachers formed picket lines. They threatened not to start classes as scheduled Friday.

Dekalb teachers also voted Wednesday to strike today. Schools in the northern Illinois community are to open Monday.

Monkey Business On Boulevard

Motorists at Francisco Boulevard and Louise Street in San Rafael probably were surprised Tuesday to see a hairy little pedestrian with long arms walking the sidewalk.

Sam, an 18-month old monkey, apparently was let out of his cage by young pranksters at Kiddieland, 46 Louise Street, and decided to see the sights along Francisco Boulevard.

San Rafael police and Marin Humane Society officers coaxed Sam into a truck and took him back to his cage.

600 Attend Rites For Slain Guard

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

"He gave his life for the safety of society."

With those words, Rev. William Brookfield and 600 mourners said farewell Wednesday to a slain San Quentin prison guard at a funeral chapel in the town of Sonora in Sonoma County.

Some 600 persons, including many fellow prison guards, were in Sonora for the funeral of Sgt. Jere Graham, 39.

"Bud Graham died a hero's death no less than those who die in battle for their country," Rev. Brookfield said in St. Mathew's Lutheran Church as Graham's widow and four children listened from the front row.

Graham, Krasenes, and officer Frank de Leon, 44, were killed at San Quentin prison Saturday in an escape attempt by Soledad Brother George Jackson.

De Leon was buried Tuesday in Petaluma with fellow guards as pallbearers and 116 uniformed officers in attendance. His survivors include his widow and five children.

Gallinas Board To Eye Center

The Gallinas Village Community Services District board will meet today to appoint a group to establish a community center in the Adrian Way shopping center.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. in the Presbyterian Church in Santa Venetia.

The new group will have 10 members, including two from the board, two from the Gallinas Village Improvement Association, two from the community and four teens.

I favor the President's new, decisive financial moves and hope they restore our product position in world markets. You can help by buying U.S. cars now, especially since Detroit has finally matched craftsmanship and outclassed roadability of foreign cars with its PINTO. This is an ideal commute car. Absolutely superb on the highway. A real sweetheart. Come in to J & B FORD for a drive, you won't be sorry. Ask for "Eagle". We're on Paradise Dr. in Corte Madera. 924-5880.

Nader Report Raps Taxes, Land Deals

the report suggested, every community should be required to provide at least 15 per cent of its housing for low-income residents.

In a chapter on transportation problems, the report said that Californians pay more for their automobile transportation than for their housing.

The report debunked the claim by truckers and bus companies that they pay their own way through fees and taxes. Even if these vehicles observed maximum weight limits, they fail to pay their share of both freeway construction costs and of maintenance costs, the report said.

The report also criticized the California Highway Commission for being controlled by highway interests. Its exclusion of citizen group representation "is notoriously conspicuous," the report declared.

The Division of Highways, according to the report, was "the single most powerful administrative agency in California government." Public hearings by the division of freeway routes were a sham, the report charged.

The division's "common tactic" at such hearings was to propose bogus alternate routes "to divide the local opposition against each other." In the end, the division simply proceeds to adopt the route it wanted in the first place, the report said.

To correct transportation problems, the report proposed creation of a single state transportation agency to control rail, air, water and road transport. It should be financed by a single fund, with money from all systems lumped together, the report proposed.

These proposals would require several amendments to the California constitution, which restricts road taxes for road purposes.

SUIT

Nevada and has been operating throughout Northern California for about five months, according to the attorney general's office.

The company is accused in the suit of violating the state franchise investment law and of false advertising.

A similar suit is pending in superior court against another Patrick firm, Sta-Power Industries, formerly called H. M. Labs Inc. That firm distributes gasoline, oil and transmission additives.

In 1968, the attorney general of Illinois filed a $30 million suit against Patrick, alleging that Holiday Magic had engaged in similar activities, recruiting hundreds of distributors and salesmen in Chicago and leaving many holding unsold merchandise.

In 1965, Holiday Magic was fined $35,000 by a Los Angeles County superior court in connection with a civil fraud suit which charged misleading and false representations in newspaper ads in which the firm recruited distributors.

Another Patrick operation, Leadership Dynamics Institute of San Rafael, was sued for $2 million in April by an Ohio man who charged he suffered severe physical and emotional beatings at a sensitivity class conducted by the institute.

Richard E. Schafer of Columbus, Ohio, said he had to have stitches to repair his wounds, was bruised all over his body and was hemorrhaging from internal injuries suffered at the "men's 12th leadership and Dynamics Institute class" at a Palo Alto hotel last October.

In his suit filed in Santa Clara Superior Court against Patrick, several of his employees and 16 other persons who took the class, Schafer asked $50,000 for his injuries and $2 million punitive damages.

He described the Dynamics Institute as a part of the Holiday Magic firm.

The suit filed against Alexander Taylor charges that "California investors have been defrauded of thousands of dollars and suffered substantial lossess" because of the company's activities.

The attorney general quotes an Alexander Taylor promotion brochure as saying "our system of marketing has received many compliments. It has been called unique, revolutionary, astounding and a stroke of genius."

But in fact, the suit says, "such a multilevel pyramid marketing scheme is an unlawful endless chain."

The suit seeks a civil fine of $250,000 and punitive damages of an additional $250,000.

Individuals named as defendants in the suit are Robert Banks and H. K. White, both identified as sometimes president of the firm; Charles Clay Barham and James M. Truitt Jr., vice-presidents; Albert Baggiani, secretary-treasurer; Joseph J. Kissela, Patrick J. McNeil and Alan S. Van Hartesvelft, members of the board of directors; L. Reese Bringham, executive administrator, and Mark Shaw, Doug Kelly and Dave Heath, distributors.

Petaluman To Head Milk Panel

Leo Lavio of Petaluma has been named chairman of District 3 Milk Advisory Board and of the Manufacturering Milk Advisory Board for the coming year.

Gordon Thornton of Tomales was named vice chairman; Walter Stornetta of Point Arena, secretary.

Among those named to the advisory committee were Armin Truttman of Olema, James Grossi of Novato, William Bianchini of Petaluma, Donald McIsaac of Olema and Stewart Zimmerman of Petaluma.

Suspect In Strongarm Case Held

A 37-year-old Larkspur man was arrested last night in Larkspur on suspicion of strongarm robbery in San Rafael and parole violation in Sonoma County, San Rafael police reported.

Donald Clayton Nivens of 505 Magnolia Avenue, Larkspur, was held in Marin County Jail with bail not set, to appear this afternoon in Marin Municipal Court.

Police reported that Nivens was a suspect in the attempted strongarm robbery of Gladys E. Johnston of 329 Greenfield Avenue, San Anselmo. She was attacked in her car at 9:15 p.m. Saturday in the municipal parking lot at Third and Cijos streets, San Rafael, but fought off her attacker. She obtained the license number of his car as he fled the scene, police reported.

Parole officer Anthony Laszewski of Sonoma County located Nivens at an apartment at 965 Magnolia Avenue where San Rafael and Larkupur police arrested him at 2 a.m. today.

Transition Of Signs Sought

The San Anselmo Design Review Committee last night asked the artist for the Lion's Share on Red Hill Avenue to bring a sketch showing how the Lion's Share outside mural could tie in with a sign for the Way of Life next door.

The committee told Emelio Casanueva, who was applying for a sign at the Way of Life, 56 Red Hill Avenue, that is didn't want an abrupt change between the Lion's Share colorful mural and Casanueva's sign. So the committee asked the Lion's Share artist to submit a sketch of a smooth transition for its next meeting, Sept. 8.

Warrant Out In Check Case

Bench warrants have been issued in Marin Municipal Court for Mark Anthony Carrillo, 18, of Santa Rosa, and Jennifer Lynn Wren, 23, of Rohnert Park, who are charged with fraudulent possession of a check.

The warrants, with bail set at $1,000 on each, were issued when the pair failed to appear in court to plead to the charges.

They were arrested May 23 by Sausalito police after they cashed checks in two Sausalito shops. Police said the checks were written on a closed account.

Cyclist Is Bruised In Freeway Crash

A 25-year-old San Rafael man was reported in good condition today at Marin General Hospital with multiple bruises suffered in a solo motorcycle crash early yesterday on Highway 101 just south of San Rafael.

The California Highway Patrol said Bruce D. Klopstock, of 908 Fifth Avenue, was hurt about 1:50 a.m. when he swerved to avoid what appeared to be a stalled vehicle. The officers said the vehicle struck the highway guard rail and Klopstock was thrown from the cycle.

Economic Growth Predicted

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Commerce Department today predicted a sustained period of growth in the rest of 1971 and into 1972 for the national economy, but said the aircraft industry is in a tailspin that will probably deepen next year and possibly will not be reversed before 1975.

The gloominess about the aircraft industry's prospects stood out in an otherwise optimistic forecast published in a midyear report on the state of the economy, prepared before President Nixon undertook his new economic program.

Nixon's moves, the report said in a late one-page addition, will enhance the "prospects for full economic recovery with a slowdown in inflation" forecast by the report.

Of 23 industries surveyed in the 84-page report, 15 were expected to show gains in 1971 of 5 per cent or more, five were to increase by lesser amounts, three were expected to decline but only one —aerospace —was expected to have reduced sales through 1972.

Declines this year were predicted for the machine tools industry and the electronic components industry, but both were expected to bounce back next year.

Of business conditions generally, the report said:

"After accelerating continuously from 1965 until mid-1969, inflation leveled off thereafter and has recently given evidence of slowing down. Simultaneously, economic activity has embarked on an expansion that has halted the rise in unemployment and has begun to reduce it.

"This upturn, coupled with the revival that is taking place in business and consumer confidence, promises to be only the first stage of a sustained period of economic growth."

It foresaw an 18 per cent increase in the value of shipments of new cars this year and a 6 per cent increase in 1972. That forecast was made before Nixon proposed repealing the 7 per cent auto excise tax and the imposition of a 6.5 per cent additional duty on imported cars —both expected to stimulate car sales even more in 1972.

But the aircraft industry, which has laid off 400,000 workers in the last four years, probably will have more layoffs through 1972, the report said.

It said an upswing in the manufacture of large commercial jet engines "is not expected prior to 1975."

But if Congress appropriates all it has been asked for the space program and the Defense Department —a questionable assumption —"there can be a resumption of industry activity" in aerospace by 1973, the report said.

It noted a declining foreign market for American planes after the peak of 1972 and said imports of planes rose by 17 per cent this year and will remain at that high level next year.

Rights Panel Sets Special Dinner Round

Marin County Human Rights commissioners will hold a special dinner meeting at 6:30 p.m. today in Sabella's restaurant, Alto, according to Gerald J. Hood, county human rights director.

The public business meeting will begin at 8 p.m. with commissioner Frederick Mayer presenting a report on human rights issues at San Quentin Prison.

A spokesman for Catholic Social Services will outline a proposed drug abuse program.

Commissioners also are to form new committees and adopt meeting schedules. All standing committees were disbanded when Hood took office.

Hood said he arranged for today's meeting — on a no-host basis — shortly after taking his post last month. He said he thought many of the commissioners were new on the job and needed the opportunity to become better acquainted.

Muskie Asks More Rights For Women

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Today, the 51st anniversary of congressional ratification of the women's right to vote amendment, should be set aside a a time to rally support for a new amendment guaranteeing equal rights for women, according to Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine.

"All women are entitled to equality in the areas of employment, social security benefits, tax deductions, provision for child care, and education and job training," Muskie said.

"place the major burden on labor." Rettig heads the National Federation of Independent Unions which represents an estimated 50,000 members.

—Sen. William Proxmire, DWis., announced the Joint Congressional Economic Committee would resume hearings Monday with Dr. Paul W. McCracken, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisors, and George Lincoln, administrator of the freeze, scheduled as witnesses.

Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans has predicted—as recently as Wednesday—that the United States may have a trade deficit this year for the first time since 1893 when records were kept on a different basis.

Assistant Commerce Secretary Harold C. Passer said that part of the poor showing for July exports could be accounted for by the rail walkout, now settled, and the strike by West Coast longshoremen, still going on.

Even without those factors, however, Passer said U.S. trade still would have been out of balance in July, showing "the need for the temporary import surcharge and the other new economic programs" initiated by Nixon.

The conference of labor lawyers followed a pledge by the UAW and the AFL-CIO to cooperate in opposing portions of the administration's new economic plan in Congress and elsewhere.

Mansfield's prediction cast doubt on chances for speedy enactment of the package.

The UAW announced it would send representatives to a meeting of AFL-CIO legal counsels that would discuss possible court action and whether other actions such as strikes might be undertaken legally.

Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock met separately Wednesday with AFL-CIO President George Meany and Frank E. Fitzsimmons, Teamsters Union president.

Woodcock branded the Nixon program, announced Aug. 15, as unfair to workers but said that "as a practical matter we will cooperate with the wage-price freeze during the 90 days."

But Woodcock said the uncertainty of what would happen after the 90 days is over was "most disturbing."

The AFL-CIO's council said last week it would not cooperate with the freeze, while the Teamsters Union said it would cooperate, but reluctantly. Woodcock said despite the apparent conflict in the statements of the three organizations "our practical positions are the same."

Civic Ballet Will Dance At Festival

The Marin Shakespeare Festival will present the Marin Civic Ballet directed by Leona Norman tomorrow and Saturday at 8 p.m. at Forest Meadows Theater, Dominican College, San Rafael.

The ballet's performance, featuring dance highlights of past competition, will replace the San Francisco Lamplighter's "The Sorcerer", which has been cancelled.

The festival also will host a family and picnic night on Sunday beginning at 6 o'clock.

Families are invited to bring their own supper, or to purchase them on the grounds in Forest Meadows, and then attend the 7:30 p.m. performance of "Much Ado About Nothing," a Shakespearean comedy.

Welfare Grants To Take Effect

The state welfare department has announced that planned increases in welfare grants on Oct. 1 will go into effect because they are not subject to the wage and price freeze instituted by President Nixon last week.

Deputy Director John A. Svahn said the Office of Emergency Preparedness in San Francisco informed the department that welfare payments are not wages for services rendered and, therefore, are not subject to the current freeze.

The increase, authorized by the state legislature in the Welfare Reform Act of 1971, raises welfare grants some 30 per cent over those paid prior to June 1 for families with dependent children.

Meeting To Plan Land Acquisition

Plans for negotiations to regain control of redevelopment land in Marin City so that development can proceed will be discussed at a joint meeting of the Marin County Housing Authority and Redevelopment Agency and the Marin City Council at 7:30 p.m. today in the Manzanita Center, Marin Center.

The redevelopment agency is negotiating with the California Development Company to regain title to 60 acres of redevelopment property which the firm has controlled, but not developed, for the past seven years.

Last night representatives of the agency and authority met with members of the Marin Urban Development Association, a group of Marin City residents seeking to replace California Development Company as developer for the community.

Wallace K. Shepherd, executive director of housing and redevelopment, said the three groups, along with the Marin City Tenants Union and Marin City Homeowners and Improvement Association agreed at the meeting that it was mandatory they all work together in further negotiations with California Development Company and in completing development in the community.

by Allen on Tuesday after he ordered the trial judge disqualified.

About a dozen officers fought with a dozen male and female spectators. With clubs and fists, they drove the 70 spectators, newsmen and others from the courtroom.

Two young black men, bleeding from head wounds, were taken through the glass partition by officers. The men were struggling and had to be taken by force.

Drumgo's mother, Mrs. Inez Williams, was in the spectator section, but left weeping early in the proceedings. She was not allowed back in and was not there when the incident broke out.

Clutchette's mother, Mrs. Doris Maxwell, made the outburst after Judge Allen had denied a defense offer of proof that the two men were beaten at San Quentin Prison after they were returned following Tuesday's hearing.

The woman yelled: "I checked out at 2:55. They say it happened before that." She was referring to the fact that she was one of the last visitors last Saturday before the escape attempt in which Jackson and five others died.

CYA To Probe Juvenile Unit

Marin County Probation Officer John W. Brewer yesterday told the county's Juvenile Justice Commission that the California Youth Authority will evaluate the juvenile hall preplacement unit next month.

Dr. Keith Griffiths, chief of research for the CYA, will conduct hearings in Marin County Sept. 15 and Sept. 30, Brewer said.

The preplacement unit survived shutdown attempts by the county administrator's office during supervisors' budget hearings in June. At the hearings, a long list of organizations and officials was nearly unanimous in defense of the unit.

Brewer reported that Griffiths already had inspected the unit's physical facilities. The probation officer asked, and was promised Juvenile Justice Commission help on a steering committee to prepare for the evaluation hearings.

Quentin while undergoing psychiatric and neurological examinations at University of California Medical Center following a court order. He is charged with killing another guard at Soledad Prison last year.

San Quentin officials have only confirmed that Pinnel is an inmate in the adjustment section but have declined to comment on any part he may have played in the violence.

Reliable sources, however, told the Independent-Journal that prison authorities had evidence that Jere Graham was shot by Jackson, and that several inmates were involved in trussing the hostage officers and prisoners, but that Pinnel was the sole perpetrator of the throat cutting that ended in death for the hostages.

(Marin Coroner Donovan O. Cooke has said that slash wounds found on the bodies of the five dead persons could have been made by the same person since they were similar.)

Still being sought today was the attorney, Stephen M. Bingham, who was the last person to visit with Jackson before he took control of the adjustment center with a smuggled gun.

His father, Alfred M. Bingham, a Connecticut lawyer and former state senator, said in a press conference in Berkely yesterday that he thought his son might have been duped into passing a gun to Jackson.

Young Bingham seemed "perfectly normal" when he arrived at the home of his uncle in Berkeley right after visiting Jackson, his father said.

His disappearance since that time may be due to "foul play," his father said, or "he may be in some kind of detention in which he is not a free man."

Bingham's father said his son appeared at San Quentin Saturday with a young woman, who has been identified as Vanetta Anderson.

"When in the visiting room he went out for a few minutes, leaving the attache case there," his father said in reference to a case which officials believe contained a tape recorder in which a gun had been secreted.

"I'm worried about him. He's in a horrible spot," the elder Bingham said, adding that Marin Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales also shared his "extreme anxiety over Steve's well being."

Bales said today he was "concerned about Bingham's whereabouts but probably not in the same manner" that the young lawyer's father is.

In another development, the President summoned Kenneth Rush, U.S. Ambassador to West Germany, to confer with him here Friday on the new four-power draft agreement on Berlin.

Rush completed his consultations with Secretary of State William P. Rogers in Washington Wednesday on the still-secret accord and was about to depart for Bonn when the President invited him to personally consult on the agreement which was hammered out over a 17-month period.

Nixon was staying out of the limelight, studying documents and keeping a pattern of working at his office in the morning and at his oceanside villa in the afternoon.

Medics Hit West Marin Sewage Plan

The Marin County Medical Society has called for a new approach to Bolinas and Stinson Beach sewage problems.

In a letter received yesterday by the Marin County Board of Supervisors, the society branded the proposed $8.1 million sewage disposal system's plans "no improvement in waste disposal from methods developed over 60 years ago."

The letter was signed by Dr. John R. Lee, chairman of the medical society's environmental health committee.

The society urged development of "temporary facilities" to solve Bolinas pollution problems. The temporary measures should give officials time to develop a pilot plan for "waste utilization" and water conservation rather than "waste disposal," the letter declared.

Meanwhile, both the Stinson Beach County Water District and the Bolinas community Public Utility District have formally asked the board of supervisors to delay proceedings on a joint assessment district to finance local costs for the planned disposal project. Both agencies noted that the federal Environmental Protection Agency has suspended action on federal grant funds for the sewage plant while the EPA studies the sewage plans' environmental impact on the coastal communities and marine life.

Although it made no mention of the EPA action, the medical society letter called for more studies to learn the actual extent of pollution in the Bolinas-Stinson area and for better data on how much of the contamination is caused by run-off from agricultural activities, "especially grazing cattle."

"The septic tank still represents the best system for individual waste disposal we have," the medical society said.

The letter questioned whether a traditional sewage treatment plant — with its operation depending somewhat on sunlight and photosynthesis to break down organic wastes — could function well in the foggy coastal area. Plans for an ocean outfall for effluent disposal and dependence on large quantities of water for dispersal of wastes also were decried in the society letter. Danger of sewer lines from earthquake action also was mentioned.

Channel Sailors Get Nowhere

DOVER, England (UPI)—Four Britons wanted to go to Paris for a few days so they decided to do it the hard way — on a raft powered by an old car. They also were planning to drive the auto on to Paris.

The 1,368-ton Finnish ship Heros rescued the four, including a pregnant woman, from the English Channel Wednesday and put them ashore at Dover after their raft nearly was swamped by high waves.

Martin Lewis, 33, leader of the expedition, said "I don't think we were daft to try to cross the Channel." He said they would try it again with a better raft.

The 40-foot raft was made out of oil drums, with an old automobile powering paddles that were supposed to propel it across the Channel.

'Free Tripper' Held For Running Around Nude

The man, tentatively identified as Robert John Westermeyer of no known address, was booked in Marin County Jail for indecent exposure and held in lieu of $625 bail to appear today in Marin Municipal court.

When asked by Larkspur police why he was prancing around nude in the vicinity of West Baltimore Avenue and Shady Lane at about 10 a.m., the man responded he felt like it and "wasn't it great to be free?"

He was booked under "John Doe" although Westermeyer was one of the names he gave officers, because he also claimed his name was "Leland Candy-Gum." He told officers he was on an acid trip.

He was first spotted sliding down a hill near 265 West Baltimore Avenue and a neighbor complained to the police. When the police arrived, he had been picked up by an animal control officer of the Marin County Humane Society.

He was taken to the Larkspur police station where he was given a pair of fireman's overalls and then transported to the Marin County Jail. There he was put in a cell where officers said he played with feces left in the cell toilet by the previous occupant.

He repeated that he was on an LSD trip, officers said.

REPORT UNVEILED — Ralph Nader addresses a news conference at the Hilton Hotel in San Francisco after the release of the second installment of his massive report on land, water and power in California. The report says land developers were aided by legislators in the destruction of much of the state's most scenic areas.

Developers Reply To Nader Probe

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — California developers charged yesterday that an attack on them by Ralph Nader was "lopsided, negative and unfair." (Another Nader report story, page 1).

The Western Developers Council, representing 11 of the largest land developers in the state, charged that the 23 Nader "raiders" who wrote the report attacking developers were "idealistic young people" with "absolutely no expertise" and an "inbred dislike of the Establishment."

Samuel J. Whiting, general counsel for the council, counter-attacked at a news conference in the Hilton Hotel immediately after one by Nader and his young researchers in an adjacent room. Nader charged, as reported yesterday by the Independent-Journal, that California's land is being gobbled up by greedy and destructive developers with the help of weak and corrupt local and state officials.

Whiting declared that the Nader team's massive report on Califonia land use cited "isolated instances of irresponsibility over many years time." He said the report failed to note "the preponderance of outstanding recreational-residential community developments."

The Nader report "has unjustly given all developers a black eye and cast doubt upon his own procedures," Whiting said.

Fewer Soldiers Held On Drugs

SAIGON (UPI) —Arrests of American GIs on narcotics charges in South Vietnam last month dropped by almost half the June figure to the lowest point in five months, according to U.S. military command figures disclosed Wednesday.

The command said 849 soldiers were apprehended by U.S. authorities on drug charges in July, 586 of them for heroin possession. During June, a record 1,629 GIs were charged with drug offenses, 1,136 involving heroin.

The July drug arrests were the fewest since February when 777 uniformed Americans were charged.

The only accomplishment of the Nader report, he charged, "is to fuel those reactionary forces in the state who, for selfish reasons, want to leave things exactly as they are at the cost of not solving our most pressing population growth problems."

Whiting told newsmen his council believed in preservation of undeveloped areas of the state, but conceded it had no idea of how much to preserve.

He defended state laws governing land use as "the finest land legislation on any state's books."

Whiting claimed that his council "has been widely praised for its code of ethics," but refused to disclose whether it ever had disciplined a member for violating the code. He insisted that "no one is more concerned about ecology and environment than the big majority of responsible land developers."

Whiting charged that Nader "neglects to say that the private land developer has been almost alone in filling a desperate public need that no one else, including government, has been prepared to meet."

He argued that developments by his council's members were popular with families "because some of the state's public resort areas formerly popular with them have been taken over by a drug-oriented, free-loading youth culture.

"For this reason, people no longer feel safe in taking their families to such places as Big Sur, Yosemite, and other scenic public areas where their children will be exposed to a dangerous environment."

Whiting said Nader also failed to note "that land that was formerly idle is now open for use and enjoyed by man, thanks to the efforts of responsible private recreational-community developers throughout the state."

The developers' spokesman said he was familiar with state laws governing developers because he had "worked closely with the Legislature and real estate commissioner's office" on writing and enforcing the laws.

This close relationship between state agencies and the industry they are supposed to regulate was scored in the Nader report. The Nader team charged that California officials give in to financial and political pressures to let developers have their way.

Whiting acknowledged that he had read only one of the eight chapters in the massive report, numbering almost 1,000 pages.

Black Students Show Increase

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Black student enrollment in the nation's colleges has increased since 1968 at a rate five times greater than the increase for white students, the Health Education and Welfare Department (HEW) said today.

Numerically, however, blacks made up only 6.6 per cent of the undergraduate college population last fall, according to a report from HEW's Office of Civil Rights.

It said only 3.6 per cent of the nation's dental students, 3.9 per cent of the law students and 4.2 per cent of the medical students are black.

Nader Defends His Probe, Politicians Rap Document

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Ralph Nader Wednesday defended the methods and credibility of his "raiders" who researched his massive report that seeks to show that California government is in the grip of powerful land interests.

At a news conference, the Nader task force claimed that 60 per cent of state senators and 55 per cent of state assemblymen are taking money from land interests. They did not name them.

Nader said the salaries of government officials should be raised to high levels, and then the officials in return should be regarded as "different people" forbidden by law to engage in business pursuits, and their money and assets should be put into "blind trusts," administered so they would not know in what area the money was invested.

The information in the three volume report on California land and power is "reliable evidence, cross-checked, and factual," said Robert Fellmeth, 26, a Los Altos-born lawyer, head of the Nader California report team.

He said the report was "not prepared by students, but by lawyers, accountants, economists, urban planners and other specialists."

Later, pressed by newsmen on the source of some accusations against officials, Fellmeth said some information was obtained from "confidential sources within the state legislature."

The Los Angeles Times reported that much of the material may have come from a disgruntled former state official, who was forced to resign after an internal investigation, and reported had "axes to grind" against state officials accused in the Nader report.

The Times said Fellmeth had confirmed that the ex-official — Marshall Mayer, former deputy attorney general —was one of the three sources for the Nader charges against high ranking state officials, including former Gov. Edmund G. Brown, former Attorney General Thomas C. Lynch and a former Lynch deputy, Charles A. O'Brien.

Nader said that under California law, it is not illegal for a legislator to have business interests in areas affected by his official capacity, only for him to take action as a lawmaker to illegally aid his private interests.

"The law should forbid the conflict of interest, not only the actions," said Nader.

Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke, joining a growing chorus of critics on Nader's report, said yesterday the study smacks of a "publicity stunt" and is based on "incompetence and inaccuracies."

Reinecke charged that the voluminous report is "designed as a publicity stunt to gain support for another ego trip by Nader and his political friends."

"The innuendoes and untruths contained in the report are aimed primarily at expanding the ego of Ralph Nader and his witch-hunters," Reinecke said.

The lieutenant governor specifically disputed a contention of Nader's that Reinecke has "unpaid campaign debts."

"This is entirely inaccurate," Reinecke said. "All debts have been paid."

In a sharply worded statement, Reinecke denied he is dominated by campaign contributors, declaring, "I have made it a point not to review campaign contribution lists. This way I feel no obligations to anyone."

Nader's report also said Reinecke ran in the 27th Senate district in 1966, when in fact he ran in the 27th congressional district.

"There are so many errors here that it could be funny if the situation were not so serious," the lieutenant governor said.

Meanwhile, a contention in the Nader study that State Controller Houston I. Flournoy and Reinecke, as members of the state Lands Commission, were guilty of conflict of interest by accepting campaign contributions from Leslie Salt Co. and the Irvine Co. was challenged by Flournoy.

Flournoy said neither firm contributed to his controller campaigns in 1966 and 1970 and Reinecke was not lieutenant governor when the commission made decisions affecting the companies.

The Nader task force charged that the state Fish and Game Department failed to prosecute polluters for killing fish. Department officials declined to comment until they have a chance to study the report. But a department spokesman pointed out his agency successfully prosecuted 157 polluters in the past year.

Former Gov. Edmund G. Brown and former Deputy Atty. Gen. Charles O'Brien denied charges that they protected large land developers as political favors.

The former governor denied a charge that he is acting as a front man for the developers in his capacity as a member of a Beverly Hills law firm.

O'Brien said the task force report, which blasts public officials and industry for permitting "destruction" of the state's environment, is based on "rumor and allegation."

Legislators Rapped By Nader Team

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — "Destructive exploitation" of California land was blamed yesterday on the state Legislature in a report by Ralph Nader's "raiders." (Another Nader report story, page 1).

Their criticism singled out about a dozen legislators, including two from Marin, Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, and former Sen. John F. McCarthy of Belvedere.

The report, issued in a press conference led by Nader at the Hilton Hotel, declared that the state government's only visible intervention in land exploitation "has been to bestow massive subsidies on the exploiters."

Bagley, according to the Nader report, shared an apartment with a lobbyist for Pacific Gas and Electric Co. while the assemblyman was chairman of the revenue and taxation committee. The report said that Bagley's San Rafael law firm at the same time "did legal work for the utility."

The report commented that the utility "has not suffered unduly at the hands of Bagley's committee."

Bagley, however, said the sequence of events described in the report was riddled with errors of fact, and that he had profited a total of $42 in legal business PG&E gave his firm over the past three years.

He acknowledged that he had shared a Sacramento apartment with a former PG&E employee, Richard E. Ratcliff, but that this was during the 1967 legislative session — one year before the assemblyman became chairman of revenue and taxation, and one year after Ratcliff left PG&E.

Bagley said he knew of no PG&E-sponsored bills handled by the revenue and taxation committee during the 1969 and 1970 legislative sessions, when he chaired the powerful committee.

The Nader report also claimed that a law firm "of a close relative" of Bagley had shared the PG&E legal business, but Bagley said he had no relative who was an attorney.

Bagley added that in 1967 he was chairman of the judiciary committee, which did not handle bills by private clients then represented by Ratcliff, who also is an attorney.

Bagley said he and Ratcliff split the cost of the $200-a-month apartment, which Bagley used during the four weekday nights he was in Sacramento. His family moved to Sacramento this session.

The only legal business PG&E gave his law firm, Bagley said, involved insurance claims. Fees paid to his firm by the utility totaled $1,711 since it started doing business with the law firm three years ago, he said.

He figured the $42 profit came after deductions for overhead and sharing with five other law partners.

Ex-senatory McCarthy, according to the Nader report, was one of three senior senators "most hostile to environmental measures over the years and most capable of making the hostility stick." McCarthy and ex-senators Hugh Burns and Richard Dolwig "formed a notoriously tight camp" with lobbyists, the report said.

The report by "Nader's raiders" charged that such close ties between legislators and lobbyists for land developers assured the developers of "the opportunity for special favors, tax loopholes and exemptions."

The massive report said that 235 land interest lobbyists spent an average of over $30,000 last year for each of the 120 legislators, thus outspending and outmanning conservationist lobbyists by 100 to 1.

This largesse was concentrated on a handful of key committee chairmen, the report added.

But the lobbyists' biggest advantage was "simple friendship," often cemented with legislators in private Sacramento clubs, the report said.

It flayed the common practice of legislative committees voting without roll calls. This practice, the report declared, "guarantees that few legislators will be held acountable" by the voters.

The report contrasted the effective organization of the land interest lobbyists with the "factionalism and lack of coordination" of conservationist lobbyists. Efforts by lobbyists for conservation groups "seem marked by a disturbing kind of amateurism which usually ensures failures, but taints even success with offensiveness," it said.

"This is evident in mad scrambles for credit whenever success occurs, and more importantly, in the conservationists' almost complete failure to seek out other allies," it said.

The report scored state controls on expenditures by lobbyists as "poorly drafted, unenforced and ignored."

It also cited a survey that concluded more than half of the legislators and two-third of all county supervisors were receiving "substantial sums from the ownership or development of land. About one-quarter (of the legislators) are attorneys representing these interests."

(Bagley's firm is heavily involved in representing land developers in Marin.)

The report noted that the Legislature's Joint Ethics Committee has never held a public hearing on charges of conflict of interest. "Informal and secret 'preliminary investigations' have disposed of these embarrassments," the report noted.

The report proposed that legislators work full-time, and that they, executive branch officials and major local office holders be barred from other sources of income. These officials also should be barred from taking any job with any interest affected by them for at least five years after leaving office, the report recommended.

The annual salary of these officials should be as high as $50,000 to avoid the need for outside income, it said. This would double the average legislator's income from his public work.

The report also proposed increasing by five-fold the staff of legislative consultants to prevent dependence on lobbyists for information.

It also urged revision of tax laws which penalize conservation groups for lobbying by depriving them of their tax-exempt status, while granting tax deductions to businessmen for the same activity.

The Nader team also reported that close to 70 per cent of the campaign funds given Gov. Ronald Reagan last year came from corporations engaging in land speculation, development or financing.

The report, noting California had few laws on campaign expenditures, criticized the loophole that allows politicians to keep any money not spent on their campaigns. This makes it "fairly simple to get away with calling a bribe a 'campaign contribution,'" it said.

The report cited the inconsistency of deleting the perjury clause from campaign expense and contribution statements in general elections. The clause only appears on statements for primary elections, it said.

This apparently was "designed to allow unequal policing of 'outsiders,'" it suggested.

Policing of campaign expense records, the Nader team concluded, was "appallingly inadequate." Even with the will, the secretary of state is not given the manpower to enforce this law," their report said.

It concluded that "California government must be cleaned up so that it can clean up California."

Convictions In Police Murders

CHICAGO (UPI)—Two young Chicago men have been found guilty of the sniper-murders of two city policemen assigned to a community relations unit.

A Cook County Circuit Court jury Wednesday night found Johnnie Veal, 18, and George Knights, 24, guilty of the July 17, 1970 slayings. Police Sgt. James Severin and patrolman Anthony Rizzato were shot to death as they walked across a baseball field at the Near North Side Cabrini-Green housing project.

The jury, which deliberated more than eight hours, did not recommend the death penalty which was requested by the prosecution.

Fine Given On Drunken Driving

Thomas James Branch, 55, of Petaluma, has been fined $182 in Marin Municipal Court for drunken driving.

Judge David Menary Jr. also placed him on probation for six months.

He was arrested after a two-car collision on Nave Drive in Novato March 18.

What To Take On Vacation

One of the real essentials for any vacation trip is the camera and supplies you'll need to record those memorable moments, the persons and places you'll see and the things you'll do that you might not see or do again.

That's why advance planning makes extra good sense. One rule we recommend is to plan on things going wrong! Plan that you'll lose or spoil some film, break a filter, run out of film or flashbulbs far from a camera shop or even a drug store.

To avoid running out, take more film, bulbs, batteries and the like than you think you'll need. Take along an extra exposure meter, too, if you have one, even though your camera has a through-the-lens reading. Its meter might konk out, and the spare will keep you in business.

Another tip: use ordinary plastic bags to carry spare film, supplies, etc., and protect them from moisture and dust.

Before you go, see us for the supplies of film, flashbulbs, a handy gadget bag or extra filter you'll need to take along. We have everything in cameras, accessories and know-how to help you.

We All Have Part In Ecology Campaign

Ecology is not the exclusive domain of the scientist, the recycling plant operator, or long-haired youth.

These groups have been associated with ecology so much that many of us of the over-30 generation feel bypassed by the campaigns for preservation of natural environment and anti-pollution.

Actually, preservation of ecology starts close to home with the daily habits of each individual.

EACH YEAR AMERICANS toss away 50 billion cans, 30 billion glass containers, four million tons of plastic, more than a million TV sets, and nine million junked cars.

The role that each individual can play in reducing pollution is outlined in "Everybody's Money," a magazine published by the Credit Union National Association Inc.

Here are some recommendations:

Buy bottles instead of cans whenever possible; they're easire to dispose of than cans.

If you buy beer or soda, get the returnable bottles. You pay about five cents extra for each nonreturnable bottle.

If you accumulate glass containers, try to find creative uses for them or take them to a recycling center.

Avoid throwaway plastics and aluminum foil as much as possible; aluminum won't burn and plastics emit noxious fumes.

A SERIOUS STUDENT of ecology will probably go a step further and concern himself with detergents in the washer and bathtub or toxic materials in insecticides.

But for the average citizen, the practice of buying returnable bottles instead of cans is a good place to start.

Those who are engaged in the tedious job of recycling will attest to the near futility of a handful of workers in a recycling plant smashing cans and breaking bottles to make them acceptable to industry while millions of their fellow Americans blithely continue to toss away 50 billion cans and 30 billion glass containers each year.

We cannot expect a group of volunteers to maintain a recycling program that would have any significant impact on the billions of castaway cans and bottles, unless this form of pollution is cut off at the source.

It takes little time or effort to get in on the mainstream of the ecology movement. You can strike a blow for ecology by preventing a can, bottle or plastic container from being tossed away along our roadways and hills.

CAPITOL REPORT

Withholding On Books While Solons Argue It

By RUS WALTON

SACRAMENTO — Last week State Treasurer Ivy Baker Priest borrowed $150 million. She sold tax anticipation notes to keep California's government out of hock during the next few months.

Come this November, after the working folks have pre-paid part of their 1972 state income taxes, the state will be fat for a while and Ivy will pay back the notes plus 2.72 per cent interest. The 100-day caper will net the Bank of America a tidy little $918,000.

As Mrs. Priest said when she announced the low bidder, withholding could have precluded the whole deal. It could have levelled off the peaks and valleys in the state's revenue receipts and made borrowing unnecessary.

WITHHOLDING of state income taxes has been an issue in California for at least 10 years. Governor Reagan, once an arch-foe of the monthly tax deduction system, reversed himself because of the worsening cash flow crises.

He asked for withholding in 1970 and again early this year. The Democrats insist it come as part of a total tax reform package. So, nothing has been done and withholding will be one piece of business awaiting the legislators when they come traipsing back from their recess.

All the folderol and the almost $1 million in interest costs might have been unnecessary.

The state's power to impose withholding of personal income taxes has been on the books for at least 25 years. Section 18805 of the Revenue and Taxation Code:

"The Franchise Tax Board may, by regulation, require any person... to withhold from payments of interest... dividends, rent, prizes, winnings, and compensation for personal services, including bonuses, an amount equal to the tax that would be imposed...."

STATE SEN. WILLIAM Coombs, R-Rialto, an attorney and CPA, pointed out all this on Feb. 5, 1968. He said Section 18805 gave the state power to impose withholding.

Furthermore, said Coombs, the state was already using Section 18807 of the same code to withhold tax payments from the paychecks of non-resident and transient workers. Coombs contended that if the state really wanted withholding, the Franchise Tax Board could impose it by regulation.

The three-man tax board (state controller, director of finance and one member of the State Board of Equalization) wrestled with the idea. The idea lost.

The board felt the legality of such a regulation might be challenged. And, anyway, the board members thought such a move would have been "politically unwise." What the board meant was the legislators might have been pretty sore if the issue had been taken out of their hands. After all, hell hath no music like the sound of politicians playing second fiddle.

So, the Board passed the buck, the legislature fiddled — and guess who is picking up the tab!

THIS CASH FLOW crisis business seems to stem as much from living high on the hog as it does from peaks and valleys. Look at Joseph, back there in Egypt-land. He was smart enough to put stuff aside during the fat years to take care of the lean ones. They call it cyclical storage. On the farm we used to call it saving up for a rainy day.

As for withholding, I've never really reconciled myself to it. When Vivian Kellems — that feisty Connecticut spinster — took on the feds about it back in the '30s, she said it all for me.

For one thing, withholding makes government bookkeepers out of employers. And, that comes close to involuntary servitude. (Some years ago, when Governor Reagan proposed a voluntary withholding plan, he suggested that employers be reimbursed for their bookkeeping expenses.)

But more importantly, withholding just plain makes it easier for government to stick it to the taxpayer. A little nibble each month doesn't upset you quite as much as one big bite each April. When you shell out that lump sum, you uddenly get the idea that all the tender-loving-care being passed out from Sacramento ain't for free.

But, it's all sort of academic now. Next year your state income taxes will be withheld. You can bet your Master Charge on that!

Would Investigate Compensation Insurance

If you have a conscientious and intelligent reporter who is not afraid of Big Money, why don't you assign him the task of finding out how private insurance companies, protecting employers from on-the-job injury expense, operate?

Find out how doctors — furnished in advance with previous doctor reports — shy away from disagreeing.

Find out how lawyers — versed in compensation cases — offer no help if you only want to be put back in shape and do not want a million dollars.

Find out how the doctors give you absolutely no information on what is wrong with you.

Find out how many times they fall back on suggesting psychiatric treatment.

There are many more "find outs" to list, but I'll bet my bottom dollar that there are far less "frauds" than the insurance companies would have us believe.

Sign Law Should Be Enforced Or Repealed

Mr. (Herbert G.) Hotchner, the city's planning director, and other San Rafael officials are trying to improve the business and residential quality of the city through the regulation of business signs. This is a much needed move. The sign ordinance was preceded by a long inquiry and educational process hindered by short-sighted financial interests many of whom are not even residents in the County of Marin.

Some merchants who have depended for their competitive position upon the number and size of their signs rather than the offer of better service, courtesy and quality of product will feel aggrieved. They will complain loudly that enforcement of the ordinance is unfair. The ordinance should be enforced or repealed. I'm for its enforcement, whether against the Bank of America or the Mom and Pop store on the corner. For too long unnecessarily large, garish, competitive and offensive signs have cluttered up and degraded the appearance of our city.

Not Even 'Thank You' For Return Of Purse

Being a member of the under-30 generation myself, I am concerned with number of accounts of young people going "bad." I became aware the other day of a story that might instill in some a faith in the young people —we really are not all bad.

My brother, his friend, and their girl friends were on a date in Tiburon. As they parked their car, they found a purse in the parking lot. There was $60 in the purse, but they were not concerned with that; they looked for some identification. On finding a driver's license, they learned that the purse belonged to a woman who lived in Sausalito. So they used their car, their gas, their time to go there, look up her address, and return to her door the purse and money intact. The woman was not home, but the husband took the boys' names and telephone numbers. It has been over two weeks now, and not one has heard so much as a thank you. They were not looking for a reward — they had access to $60 — but they will think twice about doing something like that again.

Please print my letter; I know of no other way to be heard. I would just like that woman to know that because of them, there are some young people who learned a hard lesson about being honest.

Speaking Of Campaign Costs, How About Unpaid Air Tickets?

(Reprinted from Santa Rosa Press-Democrat)

Back in Washington, D.C., the Senate has passed and sent to the House an election-spending reform bill that probably is better than the loophole-riddled thing that now exists, although it, too, could stand improvement.

It establishes a dollar limit on what can be spent on behalf of a candidate, which is good. Then it proceeds to decree what percentage of the total can be spent on one type of medium or another, which is a nonsensical infringement on any candidate's right to spend his money where he thinks it will be most effective.

There is one subject ignored by the measure, and that is a prohibition on a campaign organization spending money it doesn't have in the first place. Apparently this is a quite common practice. According to Travel Management Newsletter, just one airline, American, has $1,337,800 in uncollected campaign debts going back to the last presidential election. The Newsletter said the Democratic National Committee owes the airline $426,823; the Robert Kennedy campaign owes $415,120; the Hubert Humphrey campaign owes $133,762; the Sen. Eugene McCarthy campaign owes $135,872; the Republican National Finance Committee owes $151,871, and the Richard Nixon committee owes $69,366.

United, TWA and Eastern, according to the Newsletter, are also holding some substantial unpaid bills for political travel.

This is pretty loose granting of credit to notoriously risky accounts. For enterprises which are under governmental regulation as to both fares and granting of routes, it has at least a suspicion of working both sides of the campaign street.

Fight To Save Lake Tahoe Too Late And Too Expensive

SOUTH LAKE TAHOE, Calif. — The rush of the vacationists is still on with Labor Day and the start of school still far enough away to be ignored. Station wagons packed with kids, the big campers, the steek sport cars pass in an unending stream around Lake Tahoe.

What is happening on the shores of this mangificent lake can be repeated a hundred times over across the country. The equation is simplicity itself: a priceless heritage out of the American past overwhelmed by sheer numbers and by the exploiters, the subdividers, the greedy boosters, the apostles of a progress grounded in the empty conviction that more and more is better and better.

OF THE SURVIVING pieces of the American past, Lake Tahoe is unique. At an altitude of 6,228 feet, it is — or was — of extraordinary clarity. A sapphire blue mirroring in its 22 miles the mountains around it. Mark Twain in "Roughing it," his book on the gold rush days in Nevada and California, described his first encounter with Tahoe:

"We plodded on . . . and at last the lake burst upon us — a noble sheet of blue water, walled in by a rim of snow-clad peaks that towered aloft full three thousand feet higher still! . . . As it lay there with the shadows of the mountains brilliantly photographed on its still surface, I thought it must surely be the fairest picture the whole earth affords."

The picture is today so overburdened with developments, condominiums, high-rise hotels, ever-expanding gambling casinos on the Nevada side, that Mark Twain would hardly recognize it. A determined effort is now being made to save what is left of the unspoiled shore line and put a brake on the bulldozers of the subdividers already silting up the more-developed areas. Whether it is not already too late is the question troubling conservationists and those who have long loved this unique treasure.

THE CRUX of the effort is in the California-Nevada bi-state compact ratified by Congress and charged with formulating a regional plan and eventually enforcing it. But the plan must be ratified by a commission of 10, of whom six represent county jurisdications and real estate interests pushing for more and more.

Thus far the regional planning association has been conspicuously unsuccessful in clamping down on individual cases bound to be in violation of the plan eventually adopted.

Various proposals were pushed in the '20s and '30s to create a Lake Tahoe National Park as was done with another unique treasure, Crater Lake in Oregon. But in 1935 the park service ruled that private development had gone so far as to make acquisition of land for a park impractical.

Since then land values have gone right over the highest mountain. One of the new developments quotes prices for lake shore lots of 100 feet at $42,000 to $62,000. Condominiums on the mountain side with what is optimistically called a lake view start at $65,000.

IN ANY PLAN, as the League to Save Lake Tahoe readily acknowledges, property owners must be adequately compensated. For many of them land is their only asset. So it takes money. Justus K. Smith, executive director of the Tahoe Regional Planning Association, estimates the federal government would have to come through with, at a rough estimate, $450 million, the cost of an aircraft carrier.

Everywhere across the country it is the same — whether it is in the continued slashing of the redwoods, the threat to Point Reyes in this state, the congestion of Cape Cod and Martha's Vineyard, the serious encroachments on Everglades National Park in Florida. Are we willing to tax ourselves to pay the price? Or are aircraft carriers and gathering of rocks on the moon more important than saving the American inheritance? You can hear the immortal auctioneer, "Going, going, gone . . ."

The push at Tahoe goes on with the gambling industry, the most formidable of its kind in the world, the biggest pusher. The regional planning agency by a vote of 8 to 2 approved construction by Harrah's Club of an 18-story hotel-casino at Stateline. Unanimously the agency approved a new 940-unit condominium even though no sewage-disposal facilities were available for the additional population. So it goes with a population jump that will necessitate freeways all around the lake. And that will be the end of Tahoe's once-imperishable beauty.

WINDOW ON THE WORLD

Oil May Lead To War Over Tiny Island Groups

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analysts

As the United States winds down its war in South Vietnam, another, so far unmarked by violence but nonetheless serious, is winding up.

This is the continuing struggle among the world's nations for that currently most precious of all sources of industrial power—oil. In Asia, it centers on the continental shelf running from the waters off Burma in the southwest to the seas between China and Japan in the northeast.

The United States is involved but only incidentally, and its role is mostly that of trying to extricate itself without losing friends.

IN THE THICK of it are Japan, Nationalist China, Mainland China, South Vietnam and the Philippines.

Involved are virtually unheard of desert islands which are desirable not for what lies on their surface but for what may lie beneath it.

For instance, Japan, Taiwan and Mainland China all lay claim to one little group so obscure that even its numbers are uncertain. Some say eight. Some say 12.

The Japanese call them Senkaku and the Chinese, Tiao Yu Tai.

THE UNITED STATES holds them now, regarding them as part of the Ryukyus to which Okinawa also belongs and which are to be returned to Japan next year.

Japan's historical claim goes back to the last century. But the Chinese, also citing history, claim them from the 15th century. On this the Taiwan and Mainland Chinese agree, differing, of course, on whether they belong to Taipei or Peking.

Among the Chinese it is a highly emotional issue and has led Hsinhua, the Communist Chinese news agency to declare:

"We warn the Japanese militarists outright that the Chinese people will never permit the Japanese gangsters to trample on our sacred territory again."

The United States just wants out and has warned Gulf Oil that it cannot promise protection to Gulf's exploratory vessels in the area.

THE DISPUTE over Senkaku or Tiao Yu Tai is only the better publicized one.

The Philippines have asked Nationalist China to remove its troops from an island in the Spratly group lying between the Philippines and South Vietnam. The Filipinos base their claim less on territorial waters than on their assertion that the group lies within the Philippine archipelago.

Also in dispute are the Paracel islands where the Communist Chinese have a garrison. They lie to the northwest, not far from Hainan.

Another dispute concerns tiny Takeshima island between Japan and South Korea. It is occupied by a Korean police detachment.

Even in the midst of a war for survival South Vietnam also has time to enter the controversy. The government announced in June it would take bids to explore and exploit 160,000 square miles of water off South Vietnam. It says 18 companies have bid on concession rights.

Countdown For Columbus: The Way It Might Have Been

I was very impressed with the television coverage of the moon shot which covered every facet, not only of the trip itself, but of the astronauts' private lives, and it got me to thinking. I wonder how television would have covered Christopher Columbus' departure from Spain when he went off into the unknown to discover the New World.

This is what might have happened:

"GOOD MORNING, everybody. This is Don Carlos Vincente Henriquez Pietro San Pedro Juarez, your anchor man on the Castilian broadcasting system, and this is Aug. 3, 1492, a big morning for all of us. After countless delays which have taken seven years, Christopher Columbus is ready to sail into the unknown — to find a new route to the Indies. But let's first go down to Palos de la Frontera, where hundreds of reporters from all over the world are gathered to see the departure of the Santa Maria, the Pinta and the Nina. Let's switch to Don Alfredo, who is on the scene."

"Thanks, Don Carlos. I have standing next to me the foreman of the shipyard, Senor Jose Fernandez, and he can probably tell us a little about the ships."

"Well, Don, the Santa Maria weighs 100 tons. We've put in a mainmast and an immense square sail, which will do most of the driving. Then we have a small main topsail for emergencies, and, as you can see, there's a mizzenmast on the high poop which carries a small lateen-rigged sail, and there is a bowsprit sail as well. We've included every safety feature that is known to modern man."

"I'm sure you have, Senor Fernandez. Thank you. Now back to Don Carlos in Granada."

"Thanks, Don. Now we're going to take you to Genoa, Italy, where Chris was born and raised, and speak to some of the folks in the home town who knew him as a boy. And we'll also talk to his parents. Will you come in, Don Diego?"

(Shot of gymnasium at Genoa High School.)

"Yes, sir, Don Carlos, I'm standing here in the gym at Genoa High School and I want to tell you this is an exciting day here in Columbus' birthplace. Everybody in this town remembers Chris Columbus. Standing next to me is the principal of the school which Chris attended for a little while before he decided to take up a career as a sailor. Mr. Spinelli, what kind of a student was Chris?"

"He was a fine student and all the teachers liked him. Of course he never learned to read or write but he was a good geography pupil and all of us here at Genoa High are mighty proud of him."

"Thanks, Mr. Spinelli. Now let's talk to Chris' best friend, Ponti Loren. Ponti, you were Chris' best friend in Genoa. What kind of a fellow was he really like?"

"Chris was always a serious fellow. I remember once when when we were about 8 years old and we were throwing some rocks at a Venetian, Chris said to me: "You know, Ponti, the world is round.' I said, 'Forget it, Chris, Are you some kind of a nut? The world is flat; everybody knows that.' But he persisted. Chris was a stubborn guy, but he was loyal."

"THANKS, PONTI, and now let's have a word with Mr. and Mrs. Columbus, the proud parents. Mr. Columbus, as you know, is a wool weaver in Genoa. How do you feel about your son going into the unknown, Mr. Columbus?"

"I was hoping Chris would go in the wool-weaving business with me. But I guess he figures he's doing something important. Frankly, I couldn't care if the earth is flat or round. It don't put pasta on my table."

"Thanks, Mr. Columbus. Now back to Don Carlos in Granada."

"Thanks, Don Diego. We have an announcement from the control tower."

"THIS IS TOWER control. We have started the countdown."

"Queen Isabella, how much did this thing cost?"

"I sold all my jewels to finance it, so Columbus better be successful or I'll chop his head off. I hate to do it because he has a great body."

"Thanks, Queen Isabella. Well, it's almost the moment we've all been waiting for. Let's go back to Don Alfredo at Palos, who is standing by the craft."

"Thanks, Don Carlos. The anchor has been lifted and in seconds the Santa Maria will be at sea. 10...9...8...7...6...5...4...3...2...1: There she blows! Good luck, Chris, and if you don't find a new route to the Indies, we're all praying that you'll be the first to discover America."

Experimental 'Park' Out Of Money

By RODNEY CLARKE

NORTON, Vt. (UPI)—"Earth People's Park," a year-old experiment in alternative life styles, is in danger of running aground on the same fiscal reefs that have sunk mighty corporations and scuttled empires.

The park is out of money. And, like any harried middle class homeowner these days, a mortgage payment is due.

Despite the $8,000 payment, due next Wednesday, hand-built houses and log cabins continue to rise on the 592 bug-infested acres in this rugged northeast corner of Vermont.

The idea of "Earth People's Park" was born in San Francisco when alumni of the Woodstock festival met to try to keep alive the spirit of their new "nation." The plan was simple. Buy up large tracts of land, "liberate" it and open it free to the people-all the people.

Early last year, buses toured the country collecting nickel and dime contributions at rock festivals, on college campuses and on street corners.

When several thousand dollars was collected, the group, which by then had metamorphosized into Earth People's Park, Inc., made the down payment on the land here.

Handfuls of longhaired transients arriving last summer found a largely hostile community and a rough, tangled tract of land that had been worked over by loggers, who left brush heaped where it was cut, plus roads bulldozed at random.

A number of incidents and a lot of unfavorable publicity drove king-sized wedges between the newcomers and Norton's 200 residents, including many hard-working French-speaking dairy farmers.

This year, things have improved somewhat, due in part to the arrival of permanent settlers and to a shared commitment to the land. The obvious hard work of reclaiming the woods, gardening rock-bound on wooden soil, and establishing homesites has won grudging respect from at least some townspeople.

Relations were improved also by the realization by Nortonites that the political "freaks" were more "into" the land than they were "into" taking over the town's governmental structure.

Earth People's Park defies labels.

It is not a commune, although there is a sense of community.

The common tie which binds the people together is the land, commonly owned and run on the concept it belongs to all the people.

A newcomer, who suggested state troopers be barred from the premises without a search warrant, was told gently, "We can't do that, man. It's their land too."

As a result, visitors from "the outside word," or "Straight" society, are welcome. Middle class couples with small children, weary of overcrowded expensive public campgrounds, have come to camp and have endured, if not relished, the lack of sanitary facilities and an adequate water supply. The latter problem, which caused considerable concern to the early settlers, apparently has been solved with a 12-foot hand-dug well.

The concept of "people's land" is so basic that the deed prohibits the corporate owners from establishing rules or regulations, charging fees, policing the residents, or selling or leasing the land.

The credo, more felt than spoken, is "Love the land and don't rip off steal from your brothers and sisters."

What has evolved is a sort of basic anarchism; a social-logical experiment in whether a group of strangers can live under the most primitive conditions without rules or governments to guide them, for there is no boss or manager here, nor any governing body.

So far, the experiment seems to be working. There have been no major disagreements, no violence, no major problems and little "ripping off," even though there are no locks at Earth People's Park.

"That's outside world stuff," says Ed, who has spent the last five of his 23 years on the road in his comfortable van truck.

Ed's home is the most advanced of the permanent set, there is a two-story frame house rising over his carefully kept garden. Elsewhere, log cabins are beginning to take shape and painted teepees, lean-to's, tents, campers, buses, or just plain sleeping bags dot the woods. Work has begun clearing the brush left by the loggers.

Land" — as it is called — has averaged about 100 through the summer. Many are transients, escaping the hassles of the cities for a weekend, a month or until the spirit moves them. Only about 20 say they plan to stay through Vermont's long, hard winter.

Less than a dozen probably will make it.

Railroad Books Now On Display

Books that deal with railroads that have served or are still serving in Marin are on display at the Novato Branch of the Marin County Free Library, 1720 Novato Boulevard.

The display, by the North Bay Railroad Association, Inc., includes two books written by local groups, the Tiburon Historical Society and the Reed School eighth grade classes.

Also in the display is a Northwestern Pacific timetable dated 1930 for the interurban line running out of San Rafael and a copy of William Pittenger's "Capturing a Locomotive," about Andrew's train raid during the Civil War. The raid was made famous by Walt Disney in his film "The Great Locomotive Chase."

Bound Over On Child Molesting

Jimmy Willie Johnson, 40, of San Rafael, has been bound over to Marin Superior Court on a charge of child molesting.

He is to be arraigned in superior court Wednesday.

Johnson was arrested last Thursday after an 8-year-old Tiburon girl told sheriff's deputies that a man had forced her to commit an unnatural act in a parking lot behind the sheriff's Tiburon substation.

Tanker Rent Rates Back to Normal

TULSA, Okla. (UPI)—A survey by the Oil and Gas Journal indicates rates for short-term hiring of ocean-going oil tankers have settled back to normal after four years of wide fluctuation.

More stability in the tanker market triggered a cutback in rates, the Journal said.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

After Trying Bold Play Once You Will Never Fear It Again

"A great part of courage," Emerson once wrote, "is the courage of having done the thing before." The average bridge player doesn't have the courage to make the right play in the kind of hand shown today, but if he can be persuaded to try it once he will never again fear it.

CLUBS LEAD

West led the king of clubs and continued with the ace of clubs. His partner's failure to signal high-low made it all too clear that there was no advantage in continuing clubs. Clearly, West had to switch to a different suit. Which?

West would have led a heart if his hearts had been headed by K-Q or Q-J or by any similar combination of honors.

WEST'S LEAD

But West had been advised never to lead from a king if he could help it, and since there were two other suits West could certainly help it. So West led a diamond.

South had been waiting for the ax to fall, but the switch to diamonds produced a bright smile on his face. He put up the ace of diamonds to guard against a singleton, drew two rounds of trumps and then gave up a diamond to the king.

TOO LATE

East switched to hearts, but it was too late. South stepped up with the ace of hearts, led a trump to dummy's king and discarded the ten and jack of hearts on good diamonds.

After West has taken two clubs only a switch to hearts can stop the game. Dummy's diamonds make it clear that the defenders must take or develop heart tricks then or never. If East has the ace of hearts, the defenders will take two heart tricks at once.

FORCE OUT ACE

If East has the queen of hearts and the king of diamonds, he can force out the ace of hearts and get in with the king of diamonds to take a heart trick. If East has no high heart, the contract cannot be defeated and West's bold heart lead will cost nothing.

DAILY QUESTION

Dealer, at your right, opens with one no-trump (16 to 18 points), and you hold:

♠ - A Q J 10 8 2
♥ - A J 10
♦ - 7 4
♣ - 7 4.

ANSWER: Double.

If you have a good partner, he will treat a double of one no-trump as a penalty double, not as a takeout double. You plan to open spades and defeat the contract if partner has even the barest help. If partner takes your double out, you will bid two spades.

ALMANAC

Today is Thursday, Aug. 26, the 238th day of 1971.

The moon is between its new phase and first quarter.

The morning stars are Saturn, Venus and Mercury. The evening stars are Mars, Jupiter and Mercury. Those born on this day are under the sign of Virgo.

Scottish statesman Sir John Buchan was born Aug. 26, 1875.

On this day in history:

In 1883 the volcano of Krakatoa (krah-kah-toh'-ah) in the Netherlands East Indies began erupting. Before it subsided the following day, two-thirds of the island had been laid to waste and 36,000 persons were dead.

In 1920 the 19th Amendment to the Constitution went into effect, giving women the right to vote.

In 1948 Mildred Elizabeth Gillars, known as "Axis Sally," was brought to the United States to face charges of espionage and treason for wartime radio broadcasting for Nazi Germany.

In 1964 President Lyndon Johnson and Sen. Hubert Humphrey were selected to head the Democratic ticket.

A thought for today: Statesman Sir John Buchan said, "We can only pay our debt to the past by putting the future in debt to ourselves."

Pentagon's Top Civil Rights Aide Out; Laird Dissatisfied

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Pentagon announced today the resignation of Frank W. Render II as its top civil rights official, saying Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird was dissatisfied with progress in improving race relations in the armed forces.

Render, a Negro, submitted his resignation Wednesday and it was accepted by Laird, a Pentagon spokesman, Brig. Gen. Daniel James, said. He said he did not know whether Laird had asked for the resignation.

Render was named deputy assistant secretary of defense for equal opportunity June 29, 1970. He made tours of Europe and Asia studying race problems among U.S. troops and made sharply worded reports on his findings.

But James said Render failed to produce enough specific recommendations for solutions to Laird.

"It is my understanding that the secretary was not completely satisfied with the progress that has been made in this area," James said. "We had a lot of areas where improvements could be made but not enough action has been taken."

Columnist and broadcast commentator Carl Rowan said Render was fired from the $36,000-a-year job. The Washington Post said in today's editions that he resigned under pressure from Laird.

Asked to elaborate on specific areas where Laird felt more progress should have been made in improving race relations in the military, James cited a contention by Negroes that they receive stiffer punishment for minor transgressions than their white colleagues in the armed forces.

"We continue to get these complaints in the same volume we always have," said James.

He said Roger T. Kelly, assistant defense secretary for manpower and reserve affairs, was "very satisfied with the progress the services are making" in implementing race relations directives that have been issued. He said Laird's concern was that not enough progress had been made in developing new directives in some areas.

Render, 35, came to the Pentagon from Syracuse University Research Corp. where he was a fellow in the Urban Studies Policy Institute. A native of Cincinnati, Render said in his letter of resignation he wished to return to that type of work.

Advice Sought On Wage Hikes

The Novato Fire Protection District board will seek the advice of the Marin County counsel's office on the status of the four per cent pay raise approved for firemen, in light of President Nixon's wage freeze.

Chief Jack Kidder said the pay hikes approved by the board last month retroactive to July 1, haven't been issued and directors want a clarification on the new regulations.

The chief said the annual set increases are frozen, but there is a legal question and confusion about the cost of living pay raise.

Directors also accepted the resignation of Fireman Michael Brock effective yesterday and Chief Kidder said he planned to schedule an examination to augment the eligibility list.

Trustees To Eye Plans For Fall

Specific plans for housing students in the Sausalito School District this fall will be discussed at a special meeting of the Sausalito School District board at 6 p.m. today in Bayside School.

What grades will be located at Bayside will be discussed by the board, which will also award bids for the necessary remodeling to ready the school for the students who will attend.

On Monday the board learned that renovation of Bayside to accommodate kindergarten through fourth grades next month would cost about $182,000, considerably more than the $66,000 the district had budgeted for that purpose.

On Monday the board asked the superintendent to revise plans for Bayside for the coming year, possibly to include fewer grades and bring down the remodeling costs.

Trustees have tentatively agreed not to use Central School for regular classes this fall and to house all students in Marin Luther King and Bayside schools.

Parochial School Deductions Studied

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The President's Commission on School Finance is considering a proposal to allow parents of parochial school children to deduct some educational expenses from their income taxes, its executive director said today.

"We are looking at tax credits," Norman Karsh said in an interview. "It is one of many options we are considering."

Asked if it were the most promising options, Karsh replied: "From a constitutional point of view, yes. It doesn't get involved in 'excessive entanglements' in terms of the release of public aid and the church as an institution."

In a June 28 Supreme Court decision barring direct public aid to church schools for teacher salaries, Chief Justice Warren E. Burger said that statutes intended to help nonpublic schools must avoid fostering "excessive entanglement" with religion.

Karsh said the tax credits, if approved, would apply to all private schools.

President Nixon noted in a speech to the Knights of Columbus Aug. 17 that nonpublic schools were closing at the reported rate of one a day "and you can count on my support" to stop such a trend.

Under a tax credit plan, Karsh said parents would deduct school expenses from their income taxes up to a specified level, and if the school costs are higher than their tak break limit, they might receive direct rebate up to another limit.

The commission, which will make its final report March 3, was established in April 1970 to report to Nixon on future revenue needs of the nation's schools. One of its mandates is to submit "recommendations for achieving greater cooperation between public and nonpublic schools in furthering the education of children."

District Seeks Hiring Funds

The Marinwood Community Services District board has voted to apply for $14,000 in new public service funds to hire a fireman and a fireman cadet.

The cost of the fireman would be $10,000 per year and the cadet, $4,000, said business manager Genevieve T. Bolding. The district would pay 10 per cent and the federal government, 90 per cent, she said.

The application goes to the Marin County Personnel Department, which is handling a total of $252,000 allocated to Marin County for public agency jobs. The money is part of a nationwide sum authorized recently to stimulate employment.

The board next will meet at 8 p.m. Wednesday.

Spores Can Produce Deadly Toxin; Care Should Prevail

By FRANCES DAHL
Nutritionist, County of Marin, Department of Health Services

The recent cases of botulism poisoning caused by a canned soup have led to much public concern, especially now when many families are canning foods from their gardens. Presented here are a few facts you should know about botulism.

Botulism spores are widely distributed in nature. If not destroyed by heat, they can produce a toxin that is colorless, tasteless and odorless. It is one of the most deadly poisons known to man.

The spores will not produce the toxin in acid foods or in the presence of oxygen. This means that most fruits and tomatoes are safe because they are acid. Frozen foods are safe because air (oxygen) has not been completley excluded as in canned foods.

In canning some of the low-acid fruits, such as figs, lemon juice can be added to increase the acidity; this will also improve the flavor and color.

Care should be taken when home-canning meats, fish, poultry or vegetables other than tomatoes. The botulism spores are resistant to heat and are destroyed only by the high temperatures produced by pressure cooking.

To be doubly sure that home-canned non-acid foods are safe to eat, boil them for 20 minutes after removal from the can or jar. The toxin of botulism is destroyed by boiling for that length of time.

As an extra precaution against food poisoning, it is wise to discard all foods in swollen, unopened cans or in cans or jars that "blow" when they are opened. Never taste a food suspected of being spoiled, as the botulism toxin is deadly even in very small amounts.

LAVNIN AND UNGARO

A spectacular orange coat (left) was cut from a reversible worsted wool velour broadcloth by designer Lanvin for his autumn and winter collection in Paris. It falls in folds from the immense collar and lapels. Large patch pockets complement the collar. A supple suit by Ungaro (right) is composed of a long jacket and pleated skirt in color-coordinated wool voiles in geometric patterns of deep turquoise, orange and white.

RICCI AND GRES

Paris designer Nina Ricci showed an English style traveling suit (left) with squared shoulders and Fred Astaire cut in a fir-green and white Prince of Wales pure wool tweed for the winter collection. Designer Gres used bias-cut panels to give a beautiful flare to his brown, beige and rust plaid coat (right). It has gigantic patch pockets at each side.

RANCHER'S WIFE

Marinite Loves Versatile Wool

By DOROTHY NEWELL

The state director of "Make-It-Yourself-With Wool" competition is a Marinite, Mrs. Thomas Furlong Jr. She is also president-elect of the women's auxiliary to the National Wool Growers Association.

Mrs. Furlong and her husband own a sheep ranch in the rolling coastal hills at Tomales, and she says the contest is her contact with girls as the Furlongs have four four sons and no daughters.

As one drives to the Furlong Ranch on the road from Tomales to Two Rock, sheep, the color of the landscape, are hidden among the rocks and eucalyptus trees.

BARKING DOGS standing on their dog houses, greet one at the ranch. There are three sheep dogs, used to help control the 1,500 sheep, and two hunting dogs on the ranch.

Mrs. Furlong says beside promoting the wool and lamb industry she enjoys hunting with her family of men — her husband and their four sons, Kevin 7, Kirk, 17, and Greg and Tim, who have both attended college and are now at home-helping on the ranch.

"As a rule," Mrs. Furlong said, "There is no better conservationist than the farmer," speaking of the popular turn to ecology. She said if the coyotes become too prevalent, their population must be cut down to preserve animals. In the same way, she said, they can not keep all the sheep that are born because then there would not be enough food for all.

The Furlongs sell their wool to a firm in San Francisco, which in turn sells the wool to the various makers of wool products.

THE FORMER Donna Horrell was born in Santa Rosa and her husband was born in Bodega, where his parents had a sheep and dairy ranch. They moved to their present ranch in Tomales 20 years ago.

Using the product of their own animals, Mrs. Furlong says her entire winter wardrobe is wool.

"Since the synthetics have become so popular, the wool industry has had to do a great deal of research," she said. "Now one can get everything in wool, a lot more than in the synthetics, and most of the wools are completely washable."

MRS. FURLONG displayed several pieces of wool yardage at her home — one in particular was a beautiful wool chiffon, nearly as sheer as silk.

As state director of "Make-It-Yourself-With Wool", and a member for eight years, Donna expects more than 1,500 girls to enter the contest, and she will be responsible for checking all the entry blanks.

The three categories are subdebs, 10 to 13 years; juniors, 14 to 16 years; and seniors, 17 to 21 years. Those entering the contest must make their garments of American yarn or American loomed, knitted or felted wool.

Two Novato girls, Sharon and Shirley Bomio, have competed in the state contest, and Shirley went on to the national competition in Dallas, Tex., in 1967.

The district contest will be held on Dec. 18 in Santa Rosa, the state contest will be held in Bakersfield on Jan. 15 and 16, 1972, and winners in the state contest will compete in the national contest in Phoenix, Ariz., on Jan. 20.

MRS. FURLONG says the contest is a sewing or knitting and fashion competition. A girl's knowledge of wool fabric or yarn and design, her poise and presentation, the suitability of the garment to the girls way of life and age, and her skill in sewing or knitting are all judged before a winner can be named.

Girls will be required to model their garment before judges at all levels of competition.

SHEEP SURROUND Mrs. Thomas Furlong Jr. at the Furlong Ranch in Tomales. Donna Furlong is the state director of Make-It-Yourself-With-Wool competition and also president-elect of the Women's Auxiliary to the National Wool Growers Association.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Arguing With Stationary Parents Over Military Life Is Pointless

DEAR HELEN:

My husband is in the Air Force and has decided to stay in the Service. We love each other, have two small children and a good life.

. . . But to hear our parents talk, you'd think we'd signed our lives away.

They have lived all their lives in one small Texas town, the two families within 11 miles of each other. And they think anyone who flies is abnormal. To make a career of it? And travel all over the world? Absolute insanity.

I'm tired of hearing, "You'd better hope your children are smart since you'll be moving so often, who knows to what kind of school . . .!" Etc., etc.

They think we're going off to die. How can I answer? — ABOUT TO EXPLODE AND GETTING DESPERATE

DEAR DES:

. . . By letter, from all those interesting places you'll visit. And at home — with a smile. Why argue when you can never change "stationary" minds? — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I lent my friend $500 for his "friend" who needed a legal abortion. I didn't ask questions, or get an I.O.U. He seemed pretty desperate.

Well, it's been over a year, and I haven't seen my money. My friend does whatever he pleases. He just bought a sports car and takes out expensive girls. When I mention my $500 he says he's temporarily broke.

Should I threaten to tell his wife about this? — ALSO BROKE

DEAR BROKE:

A wife who overlooks "expensive girls" isn't much of a blackmail threat.

Next time don't be so generous — until the I.O.U. is signed. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

All my life I've had an allergy to cheese. It causes me intense gastric distress. A few jokers are always trying to prove this is "all in my head."

Several months back we were invited to dinner and I suspected a dish on the table had cheese in it. The hostess assured me it had none. I ate — and spent the next two days in the hospital. She was another of those who thought it was my "imagination."

We repaid the obligation, and now we'll be invited to dinner at their home again. I told my family to count me out, but the wife thinks I'm unreasonable.

I've just about had it with would-be psychologists. Do I have a right to stay home? — JACK

DEAR JACK:

I'm surprised you remain friendly with a woman who put you in the hospital.

Better you should stay home than go suspecting, for that would make everyone uncomfortable —H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help YOU. She will also welcome your own amusing experiences. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent-Journal.

Weathered Skin: Too Much Sun

Wrinkles and dry skin are an inevitable part of the aging process, but here in California where sun-seeking is a way of life, many persons hasten the process by overexposure to the sun.

As a result, they prematurely develop weathered skin, which is not only cosmetically unattractive but can be the forerunner of a health problem according to the California Medical Association.

It is the sun's ultraviolet rays, when in contact with skin repeatedly and excessively, which causes damage. Skin which has been damaged by these rays not only becomes dry and wrinkled, but develops abnormal pigmentation and becomes thickened. When scaly patches, actinic keratosis, appear on the face or other exposed areas, these lesions should be treated by a doctor, since they are sometimes the forerunner of skin cancer.

ON THE AGENDA

Kidney Foundation Is Sponsoring Strawberry Auto Show Sunday

Marin County Chapter of the Kidney Foundation of Northern California is sponsoring the 6th annual Town and County Village Auto Show Sunday from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Strawberry Town and Country Village in Mill Valley.

Chairmen are Jose Alvarez and James Webb.

More than 145 entries are expected in the 16 classes, according to the chairmen, with 30 Porches in the sports car classification making it the largest Porsche display in the Bay Area.

Marin Historical Society is lending a 1904 Oldsmobile for the show which is thought to be the first commercial car in Marin. It was used to deliver the San Francisco Examiner along a 13 mile paper route managed by car owner Wilbur Thayer.

A 1930 Rolls Royce, once owned by actress Norma Talmadge, will be exhibited by its current owner James Drimmel.

A free fashion show of fall clothes and East and West African styles will be held next Thursday from 8 to 10 p.m. at JP's, 621 Bridgeway, Sausalito.

The show will feature the Natural Soul Fashion Troupe of Marin City and a bongo choir backing the models.

Ruth Howard will be mistress of ceremonies, and Dolores White will be the commentator for the show.

Modeling the clothes will be Morgana Howard, Pam Howard, Peggy Bullock, Deborah Mattie, Gloria Guice, Joann Jackson, Yvonne Hodges, Shirley Ward Smith, Linda Duvall, Marsha Session, Kitt Bailey, all of Marin City; and Margaret Johnson, Helen Mitchell and Joyce Johnson, all of San Rafael.

Plan Photos Early For Greetings

With summer nearly over, Christmas seems a long way off, but there is one detail of preparation for the coming holiday season that you can do early — planning and ordering your photo-greeting cards.

First, look through your collected pictures. Vacation pictures, for example, make wonderful cards. Photographs of your family with scenic backgrounds, or action pictures of your family at play (perhaps on the family sailboat) make personal greeting cards that are very attractive.

A shot of your home, especially one taken last winter, will convey a "from our house to your house" message of greeting. A photo-greeting card, in any one of a variety of designs, can be made from a snapshot, negative or slide.

The advantage of planning now, however, is that you have time to take a picture specially for greeting purposes.

CASE IN POINT — A canoe enthusiast amid the walled, fenced drabness of flood control works on Corte Madera Creek typifies the four case histories of environmental peril told in the proposed countywide master plan.

MASTER PLAN

Case Histories Of Bad Planning

"Developments should not be approved any longer on the condition that the developer's engineers get together with the water district, sanitary district, health department and public works engineers and work things out, because sometimes things haven't worked out, but the development went ahead anyway.

"In other words, if environmental quality is going to be preserved in the face of development, issues must first be defined . . . and then settled out in the public areas by the politicians who are answerable for protecting the public interest."

Turning to developer Paul J. Broman's plans for Strawberry Cove apartment development, the countywide plan warns that an area "zoned one way and master planned another . . . is really unprotected by either planning function."

The Strawberry Cove issue still is undecided, but the planners wrote that "clear environmental guidelines" finally laid down by the political decision-makers may provide a fair answer both for the developer and for area residents.

Writers of the countywide plan punned that the story of Corte Madera Creek flood control work was "a case of hard corps resistance."

The continuing furor over designs by the Army Corps of Engineers for channeling the creek into concrete walls has resulted in the Army taking a new approach to flood control in Mill Valley and Novato, the planners reported.

"However — the local jurisdictions apparently have not caught up yet" by using to any real degree the ideas of "flood plain zoning and flood insurance. Development obstructing floodways and the continued diking and filling of lowlands can still go on," the master plan warns.

Continuing to ignore environmental conditions will result in Marin changing from "a very special place" to one with "the California feeling," the plan's architects declared. The master plan offers an extensive development review checklist for environmental zones. It identifies five major environmental zones in Marin — wooded hillside, open grassy hillside, creek settings, low-lying mudflats or shoreline areas, and enclosed valleys.

The plan proposes a series of "bonuses" to developers who do their environmental homework before bringing plans to the public officials who must pass on them.

Pictures and descriptive passages scattered throughout "Can the Last Place Last?" point up other shortcomings of Marin's past and present planning. Among the examples are continuation of flatlands development up the hillsides by notching and scalping the hills, relegation of open space in some planned developments to terrain of no enjoyment except by goats or rock climbers, and encroachment on streambeds.

The master plan volume also compares recommendations from regional plans prepared for the Association of Bay Area Governments and other agencies and recapitulates Marin's past plans for portions of the county. Text of the national Environmental Policy Act and the state Environmental Quality Act, as well as an essay on flood control and a list of proposed uses for agricultural zones are included as appendices to the plan.

"Can the Last Place Last" was prepared by the county planning staff, in consultation with the City-County Planning Council, the board of supervisors, and the Environmental Quality subcommittee of the council.

Heading the master plan project were Al Solnit, chief of advance planning, and Sol Silver, principal planner in the county department. The master plan study was financed partly by federal Department of Housing and Urban Development and state Council on Intergovernmental Relations funds.

County planning staff members will hold discussions of "Can the Last Place Last" with numerous public bodies before the planning council and commission consider it again for revisions and hearings before the county supervisors, sometime early in 1972.

Decorated Major To Quit; Hates Warring

PLANTATION CAMP, Vietnam (UPI) — A U. S. Army infantry major awarded three silver stars as a combat commander in Vietnam said today the army had decided to discharge him because his earlier tour of duty turned him into a conscientious objector.

The officer is Maj. Joseph A. (Bert) Westbrook, 30, of Atlanta, Ga., a West Point graduate who apparently had a first-rate military career ahead of him before Vietnam changed his mind about war.

In an interview here today, Westbrook said he tried twice to resign from the service because of his beliefs, but was turned down on the basis of technicalities both times. His resignation was finally accepted about 10 days ago after he refused two assignments in Vietnam that would have helped the war effort. He is now under orders to return to the United States and be discharged.

"I tried to resign because I wasn't thinking then in terms of causes, or trying to undermine the army," Westbrook said. "The military is really embattled these days, and it didn't need me against it as well. I just wasn't going to participate in it anymore."

Westbrook commanded a company of 101st Airborne Division paratroopers from August 1967 to August 1968. He fought through some of the toughest battles of the war, including the recapture of Hue, the former imperial capital, after the 1968 Tet offensive, and the A Shau Valley campaign that followed the siege of Khe Sanh.

Contract Hit By Shippers

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Shippers have rejected a plan by striking longshoremen under which the union would remove cargo stacked on West Coast docks before the walkout began eight weeks ago.

"The terms and conditions under which the longshoremen state they will remove such cargo are but an additional move to pre-determine the outcome of the jurisdictional issues in the handling of containers," a statement by the Pacific Maritime Association (PMA) said.

The statement came after a four-hour closed door meeting between the International Longshoremen and Warehousemen's Union (ILWU) and the PMA Wednesday, the first resumption of talks since the strike began July 1.

Werber's Pot Appeal Is Denied

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Former Kingston Trio manager Frank N. Werber yesterday was turned down by the state District Court of Appeal on his contention that he should be exempt from marijuana laws because of his religious beliefs.

The denial of his appeal of a 1970 drug conviction in Marin Superior Court means that he will have to serve a six-month jail sentence he was given by Marin Judge E. Warren McGuire.

Werber, 42, who is also a former owner of the Trident Restaurant in Sausalito, was convicted by a jury in connection with a 1968 raid on his Da Silva Island home in Richardson Bay. He was found guilty of possessing and cultivating marijuana.

The jury also refused to accept Werber's contention that he used pot for religious purposes.

Marin Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales said today that as soon as the case is remanded back to Marin, he will ask that Werber's sentence, which also included a $2,000 fine, be executed.

Werber is also awaiting trial in Marin on narcotics and drug charges stemming from two raids on his home last spring and in federal court on a charge of being a convicted felon who possessed guns.

Bayh Backers

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A "Bayh for President" headquarters was opened in San Francisco on Wednesday although Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana has not officially announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination.

Another Call For Open Recruitment

The Marin Council for Civic Affairs last night repeated its call for the board of supervisors to conduct open recruitment and screening to fill the county administrator vacancy.

Muriel S. Appenzeller, council chairman, said the council would send a letter to the board before Tuesday, when supervisors are scheduled to resume discussion of the recruiting procedures that have stirred controversy in recent weeks.

A special screening committee headed by Ignazio A. Vella, chairman of the Sonoma County Board of Supervisors, has been marking time since July 27, awaiting new instructions from the Marin supervisors. Vella said his committee recieved 15 unsolicited applications for the job from which Alan Bruce resigned in June.

The civic affairs council last night also decided to assign the task of reviewing the tentative countywide master plan to a special committee. Council members voted to commend the county planning staff for its 144-page countywide plan report, "Can the Last Place Last?"

In other action, the council decided to oppose any legislation that would restrict the Golden Gate Bridge District from operating transportation for recreational purposes. The council members also voted to take no stand at this time on controversy involving the Marin County Housing Authority and Marin County Redevelopment Agency, Mrs. Appenzeller said. She said the council would send observers to meetings of the two agencies.

Southern Bay Crossing Span Bid Denied

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An application to construct a "southern crossing" bridge from an area near Hunter's Point across San Francisco Bay was officially denied today by the Coast Guard.

In a letter to James A. Moe, director of public works for California, Adm. Chester R. Bender, commandant of the Coast Guard, sited reason for the denial was the uncertainty of the bridge's environmental impact.

The letter also took note of Gov. Ronald Reagan's executive order stopping further planning of the bridge in the Bay Area pending a polling of residents to determine whether the bridge is wanted.

Bender also said the bridge would have a detrimental impact on barge traffic.

Chou Is Intrigued By Nixon

HONG KONG (UPI)—Communist Chinese Premier Chou En-lai "is particularly interested in the psychology" of President Nixon when he visits Peking before next May, American journalist James Reston said today.

He also said China's primary concern is a possible invasion by the Soviet Union and that defense measures are being undertaken in the capital of Peking and other major cities.

"It was emphasized to me many times that the Soviet Union had a million men on their (common) borders," Reston told a news conference after a seven-week visit to China during which he interviewed Chou and other leaders. He is vice president and a columnist of The New York Times.

"We (the United States) do not have a direct threat of that kind," he said. "They took it (a possible Soviet invasion) seriously enough to take defense measures in Peking and other major cities."

Reston said Chinese leaders also told him that a common defense treaty with Japan was possible if Japan gives up "ambitions on Taiwan (Nationalist China) and Korea."

Reston laughed when asked what Nixon might gain from his visit to China and said, "A cynical answer is re-election." He added, "In the present political situation of our country, an accommodation with Peking could be a decisive factor, but he is going to get no concessions from the People's Republic."

"Chou" is particularly interested in the psychology of Nixon," Reston said.

"They are not too amused with his (Nixon's) two-China policy, as we would not be too amused by a two-America policy. He will be told to take his troops home (from Indochina).

"Chou said those who have done wrong should stop doing wrong and Peking is entitled to China's seat in the United Nations. The time has come for us to recognize China is China and not Taiwan. They regard Taiwan as belonging to China as Long Island belongs to America," he said. The Nationalist Chinese fled the mainland to Taiwan when the Communists seized power in 1949.

Russian River Projects Put On November Ballot

Voters in Marin Municipal Water District will be asked to approve $19,850,000 for the first two phases of the Russian River Water Project, but at this point the method of financing still is up in the air.

Directors yesterday asked legal counsel to prepare two separate resolutions for the Nov. 2 ballot: one calling for a revenue bond issue, the other for a referendum election.

The difference between the two methods, according to Gen. Mgr. William R. Seeger, is about $400,000. Both elections require a majority vote.

The referendum election would authorize the water district to borrow the funds from the Sonoma Water Agency and would save approximately $400,000 in interest, Seeger said.

However, legislation that would permit the Marin district to enter into such an agreement still is pending and time is running out.

The bill which already had passed the General Assembly was amended in the Senate and now must return to the Assembly for the final approval, Seeger said.

By the time the outcome of the legislation is decided — a minimum of two weeks after the legislature reconvenes Sept. 7 — the district's hands would be tied if two different resolutions are not ready, Seeger told directors.

The first two phases of the project will bring water via an aqueduct from Warm Springs Dam on the Russian River to Petaluma by 1978.

The total project, estimated to cost about $137.4 million, will be funded by the federal government, the Sonoma Agency, North Marin Water District and Marin water district.

Seeger also suggested that if the bill gets a favorable reaction from the house committee, directors might consider printing two separate batches of ballots to gain additional time to allow the bill to become law.

Printing ballots for the district's 73,000 voters will cost about $7,000.

Directors had mixed reactions to the timing problem.

Eugene A. Miller strongly advocated making an immediate decision for a referendum election in order to "clear the air."

He was supported by John L. Martinelli Jr. who said, "If they don't want the water, they're not going to vote for either method."

Both men referred to recent criticism directed at the board because its frequent changing of plans has made the public distrustful.

Director John M. MacPhail Jr. and Chairman Robert G. Anderson said they would rather save residents the $400,000 if possible.

Other directors agreed to wait at least until the next meeting, Sept. 8, to make a decision in the hope that more definite information about the bill's future will be available.

At that time, reports also are expected from Stone and Youngberg, financial consultants, concerning the district's financial status and ability to pay its share of the project and from the district's engineering staff on the 19-point program, which outlines future water supply needs.

Marin Municipal Water District directors also:

APPRAISER — Approved $350 for an appraiser to study the possible expansion of the San Geronimo treatment plant. The appraiser will be Neil J. Brodsgar of San Rafael.

CONTRACT — Awarded a contract to replace pipelines in Sausalito, bond project number three, to low bidder Maggiora and Ghilotti Inc. of Corte Madera for $221,900.

CAMINO ALTO — Approved a contract with Soiland Company Inc. of Novato for $9,746 for relocation of water mains at Camino Alto in Mill Valley.

Controversial Quake Film Will Be Shown

"The City That Waits to Die," the controversial film about the earthquake hazards of San Francisco, will be shown Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Methodist Church of Mill Valley.

The showing of the film, produced by the British Broadcasting Corp., will be open to the public with no admission charge.

The presentation is sponsored by the Committee for a Vote on High-Rise and the Church, located at Camino Alto and Sycamore streets. Raymond L. Haight and his wife, representing the committee, will be on hand to speak and lead a discussion on San Francisco's fate.

The film is a year-old documentary dealing with the major earthquake some scinetists think may level San Francisco in the next 20 years.

It has sparked controversy in the Bay Area as its sponsors have charged that big business and the media have suppressed its showing — and more recently (since its showing plus lengthy discussion on a San Francisco television station) in charges by some professionals that the film is inaccurate and one-sided in its presentation.

Medina Witness Refuses Second Time To Testify

FT. MCPHERSON, Ga. (UPI)—A witness who refused for the second consecutive day to testify at the My Lai court-martial of Capt. Ernest L. Medina was held in contempt of court today and remanded into the custody of his attorney pending appeal.

The witness, Frederick Widmer of Lower Burrell, Pa., refused to give testimony even after being granted immunity from prosecution.

"I respectfully decline to answer on grounds it might tend to incriminate me," he told the court.

Widmer was identified by an earlier witness John Smail of Kenty, Washington as the GI who shot a small boy that Medina now stands accused of killing.

The 34-year-old Medina, of Montrose, Colo., is accused of 102 murders at My Lai on March 16, 1968, the day his infantry company made a search-and-destroy sweep through the Vietnamese village.

Widmer was to have been the leadoff witness of the morning session. When he balked a halt was temporarily called in testimony while the defense reviewed the depositions which the prosecution had taken from two Vietnamese interpreters who served at My Lai.

Medina's defense attorney, F. Lee Bailey, went over the depositions line-by-line and objected to virtually each question put to the interpreters.

Bailey pointed out that most witnesses testify under oath, and thus are subject to perjury charges if they lie. He said the interpreters were "not subject to any penal action and I think they lie freely without fear of prosecution."

"What would your honor do if they did lie?" Bailey asked the military judge, Col. Kenneth A. Howard.

"My arm is not that long," Howard replied.

Howard said, however, he was going to admit the depositions to evidence since the prosecution, in obtaining them, had met all requirements under military law.

The judge did permit Bailey to object to specific portions of the depositions, and upheld him in these objections in some instances.

Another witness indicated Wednesday that he would lie from the witness stand if he felt so inclined.

Sergeant Claims Deaths Brushed Off

FT. MEADE, Md. (UPI)—A sergeant who served in Lt. William L. Calley Jr.'s platoon at My Lai has testified brigade commander Col. Oran K. Henderson made only a brief attempt to investigate the incident.

Sgt. 1.C. Isaiah Cowan told an Army court martial board Wednesday he and six other men were questioned by Henderson two days after the March 16, 1968, massacre in the South Vietnamese hamlet.

"Col. Henderson talked to us a few minutes and asked if anything unusual happened on the operation of 16 March," Cowan said. "As senior officer of the group, I said 'no comment' and we moved out."

Cowan said Henderson made no attempt to follow up on his question.

Henderson, 51, is on trial on charges he was derelict in his duty in not properly investigating the incident. He also is accused of not reporting crimes committed there to his superior officers and of lying twice to an Army investigating commission.

The highest ranking officer now charged in the My Lai incident, Henderson commanded the brigade to which Calley's platoon was assigned. The court martial opened Monday but has been recessed until next week.

The prosecution called 12 witnesses this week and concentrated on its contention there was plenty of information about the My Lai operation to be obtained and investigated if an effort were made.

Prosecutors argued Henderson made only a feeble attempt to obtain it and not only could have seen enough to warrant an investigation but could even have seen some of the atrocities.

The defense attempted to establish that memories could not be trusted after a lapse of three and one-half years and emphasized the point Henderson could not have seen much from his helicopter at an altitude of 1,500 feet. Henderson was at that altitude during most of the operation.

Tape recordings of some of the radio transmissions made by helicoper crews involved in the operation were introduced as evidence Wednesday. They appeared to demonstrate how little enemy resistance the operation met.

Disney Poster Sales Barred

CHICAGO (UPI)—A federal judge who says he found posters of Walt Disney creations "personally offensive" has barred the sale of the posters on grounds they may violate copyright laws.

One poster depicts Mickey Mouse and his friends smoking hashish. Another has Mickey using a hypodermic needle, and a third shows Disney characters involved in a love-in.

U.S. District Court Judge Frank J. McGarr Wednesday issued a preliminary injunction against HIP Products Inc. and 10 stores, barring them from selling posters or T-shirts with pictures resembling Disney's cartoon characters.

EXHORTS CROWD — Franklin Alexander, cochairman of the Angela Davis Defense Committee, vainly tried yesterday to get a crowd of demonstrators near San Quentin to remain for announced speakers who never showed up.

San Quentin Opens Gates To Lawyers

The first visitors to be allowed inside San Quentin's walls since Saturday's violence in which six persons died filed quietly through the gates today. (Another San Quentin story, page 1.)

About six attorneys were the first visitors to be allowed in to see their clients. No other visitors have been authorized yet.

The rules for today's visits included one prohibiting tape recorders because prison officials believe that it was in such an instrument a gun was smuggled into the prison Saturday.

Meanwhile a crowd of about 100 demonstrators gathered about a half-mile from the prison at the entrance to Highway 17, where guards and a blockade prevented them from going closer.

A few persons had remained in a vigil at the same spot all night after a rally yesterday which at its height attracted about 250 to 500 demonstrators, some of whom chanted, "Three dead pigs are not enough."

As the afternoon dragged on and promised speakers including legislators, lawyers and doctors did not appear, the crowd dwindled steadily until only about 50 remained.

Franklin Alexander, cochairman of the Angela Davis Defense Committee, ineffectively exhorted the crowd to remain in a vigil "until the arrival of the prisoners' mothers, the legislators and the doctors."

He asked the demonstrators to "march behind them to the gates, to back their demands that they be let in to see those prisoners on the first floor (of the adjustment center.)"

Alexander claimed, "There's men dying in there without medical treatment." He also told the crowd one man's leg had been shot off. (The tales were denied by prison officials.)

Other speakers maintained that Saturday's bloodbath was a plot by prison officials, even including the slain guards and that two white inmates were killed because they had helped break a "solidarity strike" on orders of authorities.

In San Francisco yesterday, attorneys for 26 inmates on the first floor of the adjustment center filed a federal court suit asking that $52 million in damages be paid their clients, claiming they were beaten and tortured.

The suit charged that the inmates are caught in a "reign of monstrous terror" and asked that a federal judge put marshals in control of the prison while an investigation is undertaken.

U.S. District Judge Spencer Williams denied a request to allow doctors and lawyers into the prison after Associate Warden James W. L. Park filed affidavits stating the inmates are not being mistreated and the institution is under a "state of emergency."

The part of the suit asking damages and federal takeover is expected to come up for a hearing in about 10 days.

Marin City Seen In Impasse By Panel

By MARY BURNS

Development of Marin City has reached an impasse that can only be solved by a lengthy court battle or a compromise with developers that will make Marin City the loser.

This conclusion was expressed today by Leland H. Jordan, attorney for the Marin County Redevelopment Agency and Howard K. Morehouse, attorney for Marin County Housing Authority, on KTIM'S "Marin Sounding Board" program.

"As long as this problem is not resolved no one will be able to do anything with the land," Jordan said. He explained that California Development Co., a New York based firm which holds exclusive development rights to all land in Marin City has agreed to relinquish 60 acres of redevelopment land only if the community agrees to relinquish 167 acres of property in the ridge above the city.

Jorden said his agency could take California Development to court and demand that it relinquish all land because it has not lived up to its redevelopment agreements. "An optimistic estimate says this would take at least two year," Jordan said.

"Marin City redevelopment was funded by the federal government and it has said it won't wait around another two years just for the litigation. The government has said the redevelopment project must be completed in two years."

Jordan added that the proposed swap of land was not the best solution for the people of Marin City. "The best solution would be for them to regain all the land." But he said it appears to be the only viable solution.

Missing from the panel was Ulysses J. Montgomery, consultant on housing for Marin Urban Development Association (MUDA), an organization of Marin City residents. Montgomery canceled his scheduled appearance about 30 minutes before the program aired.

According to the program's moderator, Kitty Oppenheimer, Montgomery said MUDA board member, Frank Phillips Sr. and president C.J. Williams, advised him to cancel.

Montgomery could not be reached for comment but Phillips said he did not see what purpose the program would serve. "We discussed this last night until after 11 p.m.," Phillips said, referring to a meeting in Marin City attended by Morehouse, MUDA representatives and local residents.

"It wasn't going to serve any community purpose," Phillips said. This would only be a rehashing of the legal tie in which the Marin Redevelopment Agency and the Housing Authority are caught. "Montgomery is not a legal man," Phillips said. "He is just a consultant representing the people."

Morehouse traced the history of the redevelopment situation on the program and said that California Development was hired only after it had done a successful selling job to the Housing Authority and Redevelopment Agency. Jordan said residents of Marin City participated in these dileberations.

In the program's question and answer section Jordan spoke of the reasons why MUDA or a representative body of Marin City residents cannot be the sole developers, as they wish.

"The redevelopment agency doesn't feel it would be wise to commit redevelopment to one group. If the redevelopment is not done expeditiously we will be back in the same position we're in now," he said.

No Highway Cut Without Local Nod

The Marin County Chamber of Commerce and Visitors Bureau today received assurances from the state Division of Highways no Marin County road will be removed from the state highway system without the agreement of the county and any cities involved.

At hazard, it previously appeared, were proposed deletions of Shoreline Highway between Highway 101 and Point Reyes Station, Route 17 from 101 to Nicasio and Route 131 from 101 to Tiburon.

In a letter dated Aug. 23 to Jack Craemer, president of the chamber and visitors bureau, Alan S. Hart, the division's district engineer, wrote: "The director of public works, who makes these recommendations, has emphasized that he will not recommend deletion of any existing highway unless it is mutually agreed to by the state and city or counties involved."

A public hearing on the roadways has been scheduled for Sept. 16 at 7:30 p.m. in the supervisors' chamber at Marin Civic Center.

Body Of Cotati Man Discovered

The Sonoma County Coroner's office said Robert W. Davis was found in his room at 7 p.m. by the manager of the Pioneer Motel, 9560 Old Redwood Highway, Cotati.

The coroners office said Davis had placed a .30 caliber rifle in his mouth and fired. A long, rambling note was reportedly found in the room.

He is survived by his wife, Edna.

Rec Panel Wants Park To Be Public

The Corte Madera Park and Recreation Commission last night asked that a recreation area in a proposed townhouse development be open to the public.

The Madera Del Presidio Development is to be located on 74 acres south of the H. Koch and Sons luggage plant and east of Highway 101.

The commission approved a project landscaping plan that will include a children's playground, two tennis courts and grassy open areas and recommended the facilities be open to the public, according to Marilyn Wilson, commission secretary.

Mrs. Wilson said the commission made the request while noting townhouse occupants will have access to the town park.

The issue will be aired again by the commission Sept. 9.

The commission also approved landscaping for the Village Square Triangle with river rock embedded in concrete and two or three large boulders and a bottle brush tree.

A public hearing on goals for the park and recreation program was scheduled by the commission for Sept. 1.

The commission approved an application by the Marin Lutheran Church to use the town park for a picnic and baseball game on Sept. 12.

Fisherman Drowns In Boat Mishap

A 68-year-old Marshall resident drowned yesterday when the boat in which he was fishing with two friends overturned in Tomales Bay.

The victim, Harry W. Guppy and his friends had gone salmon fishing at 7 a.m. He and Frank W. Kase of Oakland and Harold C. Streich of Santa Clara were returning to the mouth of the bay at 1 p.m. when a swell capsized the boat.

Guppy was apparently struck by the boat and caught beneath it. His friends dove to find him, but didn't locate him until turning the boat over. He was pronounced dead on arrival at Hillcrest Hospital at 2:50 p.m.

Guppy was a retired vice president of Planters Nut and Chocolate Co., San Francisco, where he worked for 30 years. He had lived in Marshall for six years. He was a native of Michigan.

Survivors include his wife, Betty H. Guppy; a son, George W. Guppy of San Francisco; a daughter, Judith Jacobson of San Francisco; a sister, Eileen Berger of Concord; and three grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements were pending today at Redwood Chapel, Novato.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Severity Of Itching Varies With People; Painkillers Give Relief

Itching (pruritus) could be defined as a desire to scratch. It can be a mild sensation or so severe and persistent that it interferes with sleep. Furthermore, some people are more "itchy" than others in much the same way as some are more "ticklish." The sensation is considered a mild form of pain differing mainly in intensity.

MANY PAINKILLERS also are effective for the relief of itching. Mild analgesics, for example, may reduce pruritus; and many people bothered along this line have been able to sleep all night after taking two aspirin. In contrast, morphine may aggravate the sensation. The application of cold also has been effective. Very hot water is most useful in relieving itching, which may be welcome news for those bothered by mosquitoes and poison ivy. But the w a t e r must be painfully hot to do the trick. Hot water is practicable for localized itching but is not safe to use in a shower or bath.

There are many good salves, ointments and sprays on the market for itching. Many contain antihistamines or a corticosteroid because of the close relationship between allergy and pruritus. These products are excellent for insect bites, psoriasis, prickly heat, eczemas and a variety of different types of dermatitis. Older remedies include a standard shake lotion, ointments and wet compresses. These vary from axle grease to calamine lotion. Some have a drying effect and others add moisture to the skin.

WHEN THE sensation persists, try to find and eliminate the cause. Generalized itching may be a sign of diabetes, renal disease, anemia, leukemia, jaundice or psychoneurosis. All too often there are no lesions on the skin e x c e p those due to scratching. Localized itching may affect any part of the body but the pelvic area is involved chiefly. Older people who bathe too often may be bothered with dry skin, especially of the legs.

HIGH SCHOOL TRACK

S. A. writes: Do you think high school boys are injured by strenuous track running! Some say the sport may injure the heart because they run until exhausted in the meets.

REPLY

Strenuous exercise is not advisable for the high school student who is not physically mature. It should not hurt or damage the youngster with a normal, fully developed heart.

SIGN OF AGE

Mrs. A. L. S. writes: Is there any connection between bursitis and the change of life? I never had bursitis before my periods stopped but have had it several times since.

REPLY

No, except that bursitis rheumatism, arthritis and other achy conditions are prone to occur at the same time of life as does the menopause.

NO HEAD, NO WORRIES

M. J. writes: Is there any operation that can eradicate a horrifying memory?

REPLY

Not to my knowledge, unless you refer to the guillotine. This decapitating operation erased the horrifying memories of the aristocrats who were liquidated during the French Revolution.

HERNIA REPAIR

P. L. S. writes: Is it true that metal screening is used in repairing large hernias?

REPLY

Yes, especilly when the tissues are overstretched and too weak to hold. In such instances, vitallium plate, tantalum, or steel wire mesh is used.

LAW IN ACTION

From the State Bar Of California

Unclaimed Properties

Periodically legal notices of unclaimed property are printed. Property deposited with the police lost and found may be auctioned if unclaimed. The property might also go to the finder. Or, if not claimed, property may be sold and the proceeds paid to the city.

Unclaimed mail or items damaged or without proper addresses are periodically auctioned and the proceeds turned over to the U.S. Treasury. Unclaimed tax refunds, government insurance, treasury bonds and other items are kept by the government.

Abandoned motor vehicles are periodically sold.

The California Controller is the depositor of a large amount of unclaimed property. Personal p r o p e r t y in the state is turned over to the Controller and, if unclaimed, "escheats" or reverts to the state.

A great deal of property is intangible — such as stocks, bonds, bank accounts, insurance claims. What state gets those? Suppose a stock of a New York corporation is held in the name of a California resident but is unclaimed for several years. Does New York or California get the stock?

Under a recent Uniform Law adopted by most states, the state of the last known apparent owner of the intangible property gets the unclaimed property. In this case, California.

The business holding the property must make a verified report to the Controller each year or when requested. Within six months after filing reports the property must be delivered to the Controller.

The Controller gives notice by mail to the owner's last known address. He then publishes a notice in the county of the last known owner. If the last owner's address is unknown, then a notice is published in the county of the holder's principal place of business.

Claimants to the property must file a verified claim with the Controller. Within 90 days he tells the person whether his claim is rejected or allowed. If the claim is rejected, the claimant can go to court within 90 days and have a trial before a jury.

Once a claimant gets payment or delivery, no suit can be brought against the state by any other person no matter how valid his claim.

The Controller converts the remaining unclaimed property into cash and the proceeds are deposited in the state treasury. (CCP 1510, 1513, 1531, 1566) (Note: California lawyers offer this column so you may know about our laws.)

Hidden Factor In Jobless Rate

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Labor Department estimates that job seekers who have left the work force because of discouragement could swell the nation's unemployment rate to 7 per cent. Last month's jobless rate was 6.2 per cent.

The department said Wednesday the number of "discouraged workers" has grown from 600,000 to 750,000 in the 18 month period ending June 30.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics identified the workers in a special report on persons "outside the labor force who want work but are not actively seeking a job because they think their search for one would be in vain."

Policeman's Widow Gets Full Benefits

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The city's Retirement System Board voted Wednesday to a w a r d the widow of a slain policeman his full salary in death benefits.

A $1,226 monthly benefit went to the widow of patrolman Arthur O'Guinn, who was shot and killed when he stopped an automobile in the Bayview District July 30.

Hospital For Indians Is Requested

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A national Indian health center was recommended Wednesday to be operated in San Francisco at the Public Health Service Hospital by the federal government.

The recommendation was made by the Bay Area Comprehensive Health Planning Council (CHPC) to the regional U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

The CHPC urged that the facility, used now primarily for returning Vietnam veterans, be shared with native Americans. All the facilities at the center have not been used.

The original proposal was submitted by the Urban Indian Health Board, Inc., Oakland, after HEW asked CHPC to suggest alternatives for the under-utilized hospital.

Veterans would continue to be treated at the hospital, but would share facilities with Bay Area Native Americans. An Indian advisory board, composed of 25 Indians, also would be organized under the proposal. The center would be supported by federal funds, including money to be negotiated with the U. S. Indian Health Service and public and private grants.

TV REVIEW

Paar In Agony: Special

By ROBERT MUSEL

NEW YORK (UPI)—Jack Paar still has the insatiable curiosity that made him by far the best of the late-night talk show hosts. At his suburban home these days he is agonizing over what items he will be forced to leave out of the fascinating results of his most recent safari, "Jack Paar's African Diary" which will be among the NBC-TV specials in the coming season.

Africa is no longer "the comparatively unknown continent", eager publicity men to the contrary, but there is still a remarkable amount of material which only those with sharp eyes and questioning tongues can pin down for the television cameras. Why can't these superbly coordinated black athletes swim? Paar asks himself, to mention only one instance.

"They say its because of crocodiles and bilharzia (a parasitic disease carried by water-dwelling snails)", he said, an answer that didn't satisfy him completely. "But considering their proficiency in running and jumping the fact they won't or can't swim is worth recording."

He was intrigued to hear there is a scientific study of this very puzzle under way in Britain.

Paar took the "Up With People" choral group with him to see how Africans in remote areas reacted to sweet ballads (answer—not at all) and to rock music (answer — they couldn't contain themselves especially Masai warriors who leaped about with shields and spears).

"We learned that Africans do not applaud", Jack said. "We had 5,000 of them at one concert and when the music ended they just sat there. It was quite a shock. The Masai do smile, however, and that's apparently their way of applauding. Here's an interesting thing: when we played loud rock over the public address system some of the women ran away. They said the electronic music disturbed their blood."

Seven out of 10 African children are city kids who have never seen a lion in or out of captivity so Jack took a group to a Kenya game park to witness their reaction. He ran across the film company making "Living Free", a sequel to "Born Free", about the friendship of a lioness and the wife of a game warden. The lions for this epic of life in Africa were imported from a zoo in Florida.

Jack hosted a talk show, his first since he chatted with Judy Garland in 1965, on the slopes of Mount Kilimanjaro, drawing his subjects from Nairobi, a town with "many hip, amusing, interesting and well-informed people".

One of his major sequences is about the building of the railroad from Nairobi to Uganda which cost the life of a man for every one of its 1,000 miles. Two lions, notorious in African history as "The Man Eaters of Tsavo", ate 132 of the victims. Their stuffed carcasses glare at visitors even today in the Field Museum of Natural History in Chicago.

Talking of talk shows, in what ABC-TV calls "a dramatic departure" from his regular format Dick Cavett will devote two consecutive weeks starting Oct. 12 to 90-minute interviews, each with a major star. The list so far includes Woody Allen, Fred Astaire, Charlton Heston, Gene Kelly, Jack Lemmon, Anthony Quinn, Peter Ustinov and Orson Welles.

No More Gold From Coulterville

COULTERVILLE (UPI) — The gold was so abundant a man is said to have mended his wife's shoes with five-dollar gold pieces—they were cheaper and easier to come by than leather.

That, at least, is one of the stories told about the heady gold rush days which engulfed this north Mariposa County town more than 100 years ago.

Coulterville, named after George Coulter, a merchant who settled here in 1850, is said to be located along the widest spot of California's famed mother lode which drew thousands of miners to the Golden State during the mid-19th Century.

William Shimer, a Coulterville native whose grandfather was among the early Coulterville pioneers, says the mother lode ran an estimated 300 feet in width there.

The vein was strong and mining continued in diminishing amounts until World War II when Shimer said gold became too expensive to mine.

In its heyday, Coulterville bustled with 10,000 residents. The Merced Gold Mining Co. alone operated four or five mines here including the famed Mary Harrison. And a steam engine named "Whistling Billy" huffed along a winding narrow-gauge railroad carrying ore from the Mary Harrison to a mill on Black Creek.

Today the cement, brick and adobe buildings, constructed after three fires raged through the town in the 19th Century, nestle quietly in a valley surrounded by oak dotted grassland.

Cattle-raising has replaced gold mining as the primary economic base for the 125 residents who remain.

The former gold town can be reached via California 32 from Modesto or California 49 from Mariposa. It is about a two-hour drive from Fresno.

In addition to a relatively non-commercialized view of California's early history, Coulterville offers the visitor a well-kept county-operated park for picnicking replete with swimming pool.

For campers there is the Horseshoe Bend Campground and boating marina on Lake McClure about four miles west of Coulterville off California 132.

Discussions Set On Bayside Remodeling

The Sausalito School District board will consider revised plans for remodeling Bayside School at a meeting at 6 p.m. today and is expected to award a contract for the project.

Supt. Lawrence A. Lindberg was asked earlier this week to submit new plans since the cost of remodeling the school to accommodate kindergarten through fourth grade had been more than had been budgeted.

Pro Golf Format Rapped; Palmer In, Nicklaus Out

The "big 32" competing in today's second round of the $200,000 U.S. professional match play championship does not include golfing superstars Jack Nicklaus or Gary Player, eliminated along with 30 others in the first round of the controversial new tournament.

Nicklaus shot a three-under-par 69, but lost out to lanky Ray Floyd, winless in tournament play this year, whose 67 was best round of the day. Player ended the regulation round of 18 holes tied with Homero Blancas at 71, but fell by a stroke on the third hole of a playoff.

Nicklaus and Palmer had both lauded the return of match play to the pro tour. But even Palmer was a bit apprehensive about the format following the upsets, despite his own threes-troke win over Bruce Devlin with a four-under-par 68 on the 6,973 yard Country Club of North Carolina course.

"I'm not sure about the format," said Palmer. "You are playing match play, but it's tougher. You can't let up for a second, or you are going to get left out."

The competition, a brainchild of PGA tournament players commissioner Joe Dey, differs from regular match play in scoring. Instead of being scored by holes, the player with the fewest strokes wins each match. In case of ties, a playoff is held.

If you wanted to find another man with reservations about the format, you'd have to go no further than Tommy Aaron. His 68 after 18 holes would have put him for a tie for second place in medal play, but his opponent, Dave Eichelberger also shot a 68 and whipped Aaron by a stroke on the 19th hole.

Floyd, who had an eagle and six birdies in ousting Nicklaus, said afterward that he was so excited that he felt he was playing in the championship match. In an apparent warning, Nicklaus said later that in match play, a player has to be careful not to get too keyed up for any match, lest he have a slump later.

Blancas acknowledged that the match play was more de-

NORTH VERSUS SOUTH

Marin Grid Lineups Set

With surprises in store and Trojans galore, the North will start three-quarters of Terra Linda's 1970 championship backfield in the sixth North-South Marin County football game pitting the best of last year's senior gridders tomorrow night at 8 o'clock on the San Rafael High School field.

Opening with quarterback Larry Kerr, plus running backs Matt Bowman and John Scozzafava was expected, but the appearance of two more Terra Linda blockers was not. The pair are right guard Pete Myer, 5-11, 180, and the much-travelled Scott Seefeldt, 6-0, 190. The latter moved to Oklahoma City but is coming back to play in the game. "He's dedicated," head coach Jerry Colletto of Novato explained as he and South coach Jess Payan today announced their starting lineups.

With the return of Seefeldt, the North will have seven Terra Linda products in the offensive alignment. The others are Bruce Little, a 6-2, 215 pound tackle and Steve Cupples, a 5-11, 185 pound guard.

In an effort to add more meat to the front line, Curt Lewis, a 6-1, 220 pound Novato graduate, will be the center, freeing the small Jack Burnham for middle linebacking duties.

Left end Mike Kassenbrock, a 5-9, 165 pounder from San Marin and Novato's John Kidder, 5-11, 165, will be the pass recipients. Right halfback Randy Jackson will forsake his defensive assignments to complete the offensive backfield.

Jackson's linebacking responsibilities will be filled by Tom Kewell, a converted San Rafael Military Academy quarterback, 6-0, 175, Burnham, and Mike Sampson, San Rafael.

This trio will support linemen Tim Kelley, 6-0, 175 pound, and Paul Meaney, 6-0, 185, the Novato end tandem; tackles Little and Brad Wright of San Rafael, 6-6, 200, plus middle guard Tom Fowler, the 5-6, 170 pound San Marin offshoot.

Mike Van Horn, the 5-10, 155 pound All-Leaguer from San Marin will be the safety with halfback Scott Stewart, Van Horn's rangy 6-2, 165 pound prep days running mate, teaming with Novato's Mike Corder, 5-9, 150 at defensive halfbacks.

This lightweight secondary will be sorely tested by the fast-developing Rick Mason, the South quarterback. The former Drake performer, 5-11, 175, is considered a heady signal caller sporting an ever-improving throwing ability. He will handoff to the likes of halfbacks Bill Washington, the 6-1, 180 pound Tamalpais speedster, and Marin Catholic's Mark Lewis, 5-10, 160. Mark Costello, a Washington colleague in high school, will be the fullback. The 5-11, 190 pound dynamo has shown well in practice, South mentor Jess Payan contends.

At ends, Payan will start Marin Catholic's Leo Fahy, 5-11, 185 and Steve Fleischman, 6-1, 190 from Redwood. Payan has given first string status to tackles Tim Thompson, Marin Catholic's 6-3, 215 pounder, and Drake's Jeff Allen, 6-4, 220. Dave Limont, 6-0, 200 from Marin Catholic, and Bill Rudolph, a 6-0, 225 pound Tam product, will man the guard slots around center Damian Casalnuovo, the 5-7, 180 Drake graduate who was shifted from guard.

Casalnuovo, along with Rudolph, Thompson, Fahy, Lewis and Washington will receive little respite, for they will start defensively as well. Rudolph, Thompson, Casalnuovo and Fahy will do battle in the line, with linebacking support from Redwood graduates Andy Annixter and Dave Shekell. Annixter is viewed as a hard-nosed 5-10, 185 pounder , while Shekell is a rugged 5-9, 160 pound mauler. They will work

49ers Like 'I' Attack, Plan More

GOLETA, Calif. (UPI)—San Francisco 49er coach Dick Nolan Wednesday said his club will do more running from the I-formation this season.

"We ran from the I-formation a couple of times against San Diego last week and it worked pretty well for us," Nolan said following a workout at the 49er training camp.

Nolan, who scrubbed the I-formation after using it briefly during his first season at San Francisco in 1968, said he liked the alignment because it gives the running backs the otpion of running to either side of the line. It is also harder to defense, Nolan noted.

Young Pitchers Helped Reverse Giant Plunge

NEW YORK — Juan Marichal and Gaylord Perry won 14 of their first 18 decisions during the first two months of the 1971 baseball campaign. Then, inexplicably, the pitching aces of the Giants could win only two of their next 19 starts.

Between Memorial Day and July Fourth a 10-½ game lead of the Giants shrunk to 3-½. When the Giants needed them most, the younger members of the team's pitching staff came through in handsome style during a critical period.

RON BRYANT, who later was to encounter a personal crisis in a six-game losing streak, eased the team crisis with a couple of mid-June victories. By the time Bryant slipped into his own dip, Marichal and Perry had recaptured their pitching magic.

Don Carrithers, called up from Phoenix June 24 after Frank Reberger ripped a finger on his pitching hand, provided some sorely needed rest for the team's bullpen during the crisis. Five days after being summoned from Phoenix, Carrithers went five innings in relief during which he one-hit the Padres for a victory. Then, Carrithers brought further stability to the bullpen with 10 innings of scoreless relief pitching in five succeeding games.

CARRITHERS' arrival on the scene also enabled John Cumberland to move into a starting role after 22 relief appearances. Cumberland had been superb in his relief roles. He hadn't lost one, won two and saved two. But as a starter he was so tenacious and determined that Charlie Fox nicknamed the southpaw "Bulldog."

Cumberland won three-in-a-row between June 22 and July 3. The Bulldog had been properly nicknamed by the team manager. There was no doubt about it Cumberland was a front line competitor who came through in a crisis that the team survived with his help and that of Bryant and Carrithers.

OF COURSE, the trio of young pitchers didn't do it alone. But without them the Giants may not have been able to stop their skid from 10-½ to 3-½.

Another crisis was to arise in August when the Dodgers made a second run at the Giants who had re-built their 3-½ game lead of early July to nine games by the end of the month. Between Aug. 1-11, the Giants lost eight of 10 games and once again the Dodgers had pulled to within 3-½ games.

NOW, IT was time for a team captain to do something and Willie Mays did. He dominated a three-game series between the Mets and Giants in Candlestick Aug. 13-15. Mays had played himself into near exhaustion and just prior to the series with the Mets, Fox gave him a four-day rest.

During the Met series Mays ran the bases like no other 40-year-old can. He scored from third on an infield tap back to the mound after a Met pitcher threw the ball to the Met first baseman for a routine out.

AND DURING the three-game series Mays singled, doubled, tripled and homered. The three-game sweep of the Mets was followed by a two-game sweep of the Phillies and the Giants set out on this road trip with a 7-½ game lead over their old Dodger rivals as they entered the stretch run for the National League West flag.

YANKEE MANAGER:

A's, O's Playoff Will Be A Dandy

OAKLAND (UPI) —Ralph Houk, the New York Yankees manager, thinks the forthcoming American League playoff between the Oakland A's and Baltimore Orioles will be very close.

"Each side has its pluses," said Houk, "and I expect it to be a dandy series."

Houk, whose Yankees defeated the A's 4-2 behind Steve Kline Wednesday night, figures Baltimore might have a slight edge in pitching depth but added it won't make all that much difference.

"In a short series a pitcher such as Vida Blue can make a big difference," said Houk. "If he pitches in the playoffs the way he did against us, the A's will be tough".

Kline spaced nine hits to gain his 10th victory in 22 decisions, and it was his first win this year over the A's. Sal Bando, the A's captain and third baseman, did not play again. He's still resting after being hit by a pitch over his right elbow Monday night.

"He's their key player," said Kline, "as Boog Powell is Baltimore's big man. Without Powell the Orioles can be pitched to, but when he's in there and swinging good Baltimore is really tough."

Bobby Murcer gave Kline all the help he needed by driving in two runs in the first with a single and another in the third with his 23rd homer. Felipe Alou tagged his sixth homer in the fourth for New York's final run.

Reggie Jackson's 24th homer and Rick Monday's 15th accounted for all the Oakland scoring as the A's lost another game in their big A.L. West lead and now are 14 games ahead of the second place Kansas City Royals. Thus, the A's magic number for clinching the division title is still 21 with 33 games left to play. Baltimore is 11 1-2 games ahead of Detroit in the A.L. East with 39 games remaining.

Jim Hunter went the distance for the A's Wednesday night and suffered his 11th defeat compared to 16 victories. Hunter has seven more starting assignments left so he still has a chance to win 20 games.

A crowd of only 5,950 saw Wednesday night's game, polished off in one hour and 54 minutes, and it pushed Oakland's home attendance just over the 800,000 mark. The A's have 17 more home dates with Blue scheduled to pitch in five of them. That means they have an outside chance of reaching one million in attendance, which would be a first for them since the club was moved to Oakland four years ago.

Raiders Trade Svihus To N.Y.

Svihus, who was used as a backup man with the Raider, is a seven year veteran from Southern California. The 6-foot-4, 245-pounder should give added strength to the Jets' already strong offensive line.

Giants Get Rest, Head For Philly

The Giants left New York for the final time this season Wednesday after losing to the Mets, 5-1, falling to a three-hitter by Jerry Koosman.

The Mets got to Giant starter Gaylord Perry for five runs, three of them earned, with eight hits in the first five innings. It was Perry's 10th loss of the season against 13 victories.

Dave Kingman got the Giants their only run when he smashed a 500-foot home run over the leftfield fence in the fifth inning. Kingman's blast was also the first hit of the game for San Francisco.

Koosman, now 5-8, has been bothered by arm trouble most of the season and last won a game on June 26, when he beat Montreal. He walked two and struck out eight, including Willie Mays three times.

The Mets scored their first run in the third when Cleon Jones walked and scored as Ken Boswell's single got past leftfielder Ken Henderson for a two-base error. They put three more on the board in the fourth and got their final run in the fifth when Tommy Agee hit his 13th homer of the season.

The loss cut San Francisco's

'BLATANT BRUTALITY'

Cops Suspended In Carty Brawl

ATLANTA (UPI) —Three Atlanta policemen who allegedly beat up baseball star Rico Carty have been suspended and Mayor Sam Massell says he will recommend that they be fired.

Carty, the Atlanta Braves' outfielder who led the majors in hitting last year with a .366 average but who has been out all this season with an injured knee, received two black eyes, a split finger and multiple bruises early Wednesday in an altercation with the three policemen.

Two of the officers, L. D. Smith and C. E. Turner, were both "off duty" at the time of the incident and were first identified by the third officer, J. R. McEarchern, as "two white males."

Carty had been charged by McEarchern with "creating a turmoil and simple battery on an officer" and had been scheduled for a polie court hearing yesterday.

But, after Carty and Braves' officials met with Massell about noon, the hearing was postponed until Sept. 8 and Police Chief Herbert Jenkins ordered "a thorough and prompt investigation."

About five hours after Massell issued a statement in which he said, "every citizen of good will want the facts exposed," he followed with his suspension notice.

"I cannot emphasize too strongly my complete disgust with what is apparently an incident of blatant brutality," said Massell. "Those involved have brought disgrace to our police Department, the city and the profession of law enforcement across the country.

"The men involved are hereby suspended without pay and cited to stand trial ... at the earliest lawful date. Based on the evidence I have received, I will recommend at that time that they be discharged from any further employment with our city."

News of the incident was disclosed after Carty and his brother-in-law, Carlos Ramirez, who required some stitches in his head from apparently being struck by a blackjack, were treated at an Atlanta Hospital and released.

In his report, McEarchern said his patrol car was parked near an expressway ramp near Downtown Atlanta when Carty, 30, and Ramirez, 19, pulled up behind him and another car "occupied by one white male" pulled up along side.

McEarchern said that Carty and the "white male" both jumped out of their cars and started fighting after a heated exchange of words. He said Ramirez and "another white" male joined the fight.

As McEarchern reported the incident, he put Ramirez into the patrol car and put handcuffs on Carty but "by the time other cars got there the two white males were no longer in the area."

Carty later said, "the truth of this incident is not in keeping with reports that have been issued...investigation will show that I have done nothing wrong, that it was I who was wronged."

Carty reportedly told a city official that he and Ramirez had stopped for a red light when the two white men, later identified as Smith and Turner, drove up and made a disparaging remark. Carty said he noticed the patrol car nearby and drove over to tell the officer in an effort to avoid trouble.

The official said Carty told him that when he and Ramirez got out of their car, the two white men followed them and started fighting and that McEarchern hit Ramirez over the head and then joined the other two in beating him.

with middle backer Mike Johnson, a 6-0, 200 pound Tam lad.

On occasion, the trio will be called on to aid the pass defense headed by cornerbacks Mike Massoletti and Leon Howard. Massoletti is a quick 5-9, 165 pound Redwood veteran; Howard is smaller, at 5-7, 151 pounds, but the Tam standout has few peers in the quickness category.

If a North receiver slips by either Howard or Massoletti, he would have to contend with speedy safeties Lewis and Washington.

Thus, with such a plethora of talent, both coaches realize that intangibles like breaks may decide the outcome.

Anything can happen, the two sides agreed; and with the available quality ready, it probably will.

21-GAME WINNER

Lolich Haunted By No. 2 Stigma

By FRED MCMANE
UPI Sports Writer

For five years the crafty lefthander toiled in the shadow of Denny McLain as the No. 2 man on the Detroit Tigers' pitching staff, and now that he has finally shaken that stigma, he still finds himself coming out second best to Oakland's Vida Blue.

Lolich has emerged this season as a solid candidate for the American League's Cy Yound Award, but unless something drastic happens during the last month of the season, Mickey is going to come out second best to the Athletics' young phenom in the voting.

The 30-year-old Lolich posted his 21st victory of the season and surpassed the 300-innings pitched mark Wednesday night when he hurled the Tigers to a 6-2 victory over the Minnesota Twins. It was his eighth consecutive complete game and he struck out five to boost his total to 253, which means he is now second to Blue in victories, complete games and strikeouts.

"I don't even think about catching Blue or anything," said Lolich, whose record is now 21-9. "It hasn't been a big thing with me. I've gone through this before. We had another guy on this club and I was always No. 2 then. Headlines don't mean anything to me. I've been No. 2 for so long it doesn't bother me anymore."

Lolich scattered eight hits Wednesday night in going the distance for the 22nd time this season. He was tagged for a two-run homer by Harmon Killebrew in the third inning, but Al Kaline's two-run homer in the first and a two-run double by Bill Freehan in the sixth got him all the runs he needed.

Lolich also contributed to his own cause with a run-scoring double in the seventh. That hit broke an 0-for-38 slump for the Tigers' pitcher and was his first extra base blow since June 24.

In other AL games, Baltimore beat Chicago 6-3, Kansas City defeated Boston 7-5, Milwaukee edged Cleveland 108, New York topped Oakland 4-2 and Washington nipped California 5-4.

The Mets downed San Francisco 5-1, Cincinnati rapped Chicago 9-4, San Diego blanked Philadelphia 7-0, Los Angeles beat Montreal 4-1, St. Louis defeated Houston 4-1 and Pittsburgh routed Atlanta 13-6 in National League action.

NFL Changes Cut Date to Tuesday

NEW YORK (UPI)—The National Football League announced Wednesday night that the first cutdown date for the 26 league teams had been zxtended 24 hours —from 4 p.m. EDT Monday, Aug. 30, until 4 p.m. EDT, Tuesday, Aug. 31.

The reason for the extension is because of a pre-season game between the New York Jets and the Kansas City Chiefs scheduled for Monday night.

All NFL teams must pare their rosters to 49 players by next Tuesday. The other two cutdown dates remain the same with teams having to reduce to 44 players by Monday, Sept. 6, and the final 40 on Monday, Sept. 13.

Pro Cage Chief Gets More Power

NEW YORK (UPI)—The National Basketball Association-American Basketball Association merger may be slow in becoming reality, but the image of Walter Kennedy is rapidly changing.

Kennedy, long considered a mere figurehead for the NBA owners, Wednesday was installed as one of the most powerful czars in professional sports when the Board of Governors voted to give him the authority to suspend and-or fine any person guilty of prejudicial or detrimental actions against the league up to $25,000. Pro Football Commissioner Pete Rozelle is restricted to a $5,000 fining limit while Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's fining ceiling is still unlimited.

While Kennedy's suspension authority is unlimited, he is still restricted to a $1,000 fine on players according to a previous agreement between the league and the NBA Players Association.

Kennedy said the new powers invested in him had "nothing to do with the NBA merger nor did it have any connection with the recent Richie Guerin controversy." Guerin, coach of the Atlanta Hawks, threatened to fine players who did not play in exhibition games whereas the NBA retorted that Guerin did not speak on behalf of the league.

dropped it in 1968 was because the players had a hard time running the plays along with everything else that we were trying to teach them in my first year," Nolan said.

"Now that the players are familiar with the system we're able to expand our plays on offense," he said.

Another reason Nolan wants to use the I-formation this season is newcomer Vic Washington, a running back with a sprinter's speed and who has a knack for slipping through holes in the line.

"There's no question that a player with Washington's quickness helps make the I formation work," Nolan said.

The 49ers were scheduled to work out again Thursday and Friday morning before flying to Spokane for an exhibition game with Denver Saturday night. night.

NATIONAL AAU SWIMMING MEET

Terra Lindan Paces Marin Team

I-J Special Report

HOUSTON — San Mateo's Tom McBreen, 18, set a new outdoor 400-meter freestyle world mark in the National AAU Swimming Championships here yesterday while 15-year-old Rick DeMont of Terra Linda paced the Marin Aquatic Club entries.

The 5-foot-8 Terra Linda High School junior turned in a 4:15.2, no small feat considering he was recovering from an asthma attack. His clocking, though far below McBreen's record-breaking 4:02.8, established a new personal achievement by six-tenths of a second. Though he did not finish in the top 16, DeMont probably set a new standard for asthmatic swimmers.

Like DeMont, teammate Sue Secondo, a 16-year-old Drake High School senior, failed to make the elite 16 roll in her event, the 100-meter breaststroke. Miss Secondo's coach, Don Swartz, considered her time "average," but he voiced stronger optimism in mentioning today's Marin A.C. participants. Miss Secondo will join cohorts Kim Hughes, Denise Ham and Jo Hislop in medley relay competition. Swartz stated the four could place in the leading 16 category.

In addition, Miss Hislop will go in the 200-meter freestyle and Miss Ham will try the 400-meter Individual Medley.

Mark Spitz of Sacramento, Calif., won the men's 100-meter butterfly in :55.4.06. However, earlier he swam a preliminary time of :55.01, beating his world record mark by more than half a second.

Charles Campbell of Pasadena, Calif., won the men's 200-meter backstroke in 2:07.144 ahead of Tim McKee of New Town Square, Pa., at 2:07.784.

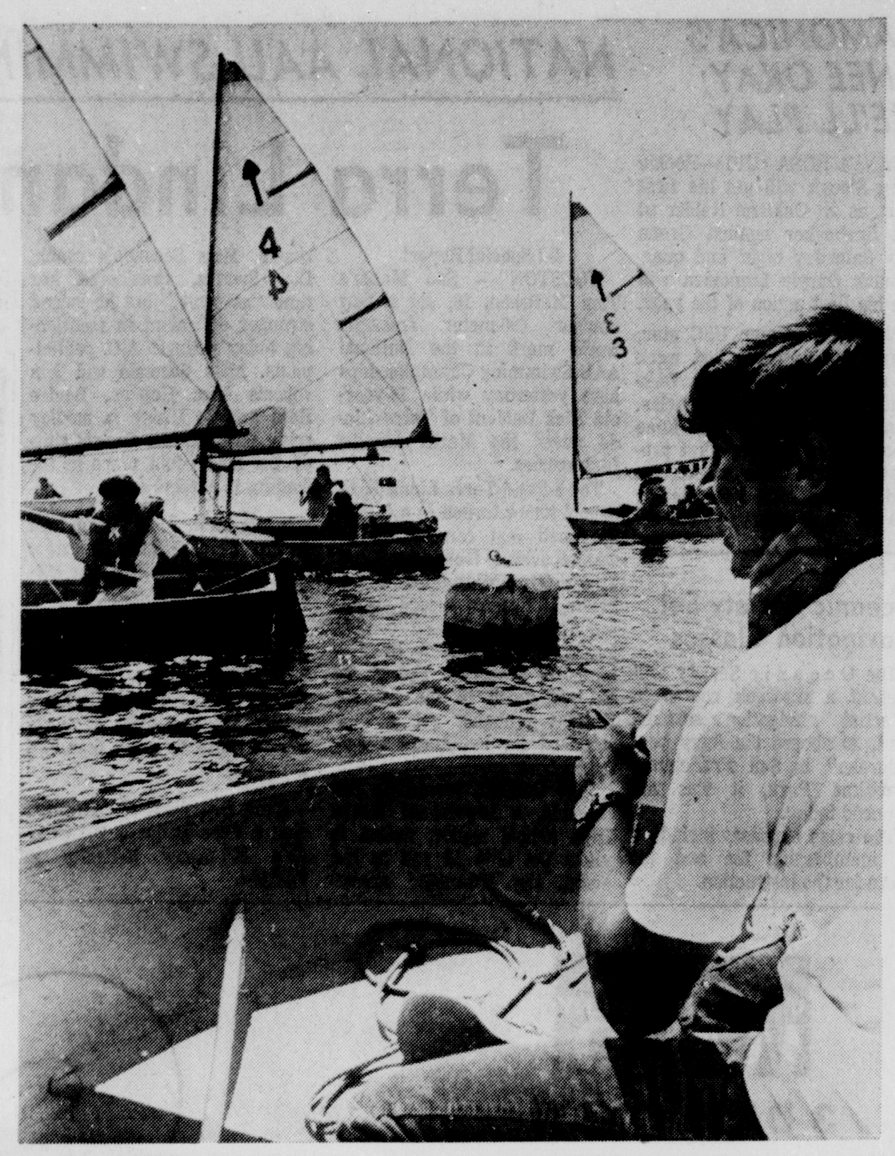
FOR SAIL — In an attempt to sell sailing to Marin County residents, the St. Francis and Sausalito yacht clubs joined forces this summer in presenting an instructional program for area youths aged 11-18. The 120 participants, including the above, received actual on-the-bay training in Richardson Bay. The project concludes tomorrow.



SAUSALITO SEAFARI — Instructor Jeff Stine, a 16-year-old San Mateo resident, carefully watches a Junior Sailing class race involving the intermediate group. The practice go is geared to apply the safety standards and race rules Stine and colleague Bob Smith, 19, expounded in the program's lecture series.

San Rafael Trio Enters Police Olympic Games

A three-man San Rafael Police Department team will represent Marin County in the track and field segment of the Police Olympics starting Sept. 1 in the Bay Area, it was announced today.

The trio includes highjumper Don Rose, 35, pentathlon hopeful Bob Marvin, 27, and miler Ward Hayter, 23.

San Rafael will host two pistol competitions, the opening golf round and high-powered rifle action in the Olympics.

On Sept. 1 at 8 a.m., golfers will vie at Peacock Gap Golf Club. Thp next day at the same hour, the combat pistol tournament begins on the San Rafael Police Department range. On Sept. 3 at 8 a.m. the target pistol tournament will be held on the same shooting facility and will continue Saturday.

At 9 a.m. Saturday, Ft. Berry in Sausalito will host the high power rifle event.

Unser Sets Ontario— Speed Mark

ONTARIO, Calif. (UPI)— Bobby Unser of Albuquerque, N.M., turned in the fastest time ever recorded on the Ontario Motor Speedway Wednesday when he sent his Eagle turbocharged Offy flying at 180.977 miles an hour in practice for the California 500 mile race Sept. 5.

Unser's time compared with the previous best practice mark of 177.409 set by his brother, Al Unser, Tuesday. But both Peter Revson and Al Unser mettered that mark Wednesday.

Revson powered his Mclaren Offy around the 2.5 mile course in 179.390 and Al Unser was clocked in 179.175. Swede Savage, who suffered major head injuries on the Ontario track last march, was timed in 177.865 while Gary Bettenhausen, Tinley Park, Ill., was clocked in 175.644.

One accident marred the day's practice runs as 24 drivers turned in speeds of better than 170 miles an hour out of 40 who recorded practice laps.

Rookie driver John Cannon of Montreal lost control of his Plymouth on turn one and spun into the wall. The car was severely damaged but Cannon was only shaken up.

Bronco Punter, Receiver Out Of Tilt With 49ers Saturday

DENVER (UPI) — Denver Bronco Coach Lou Saban lost a wide receiver and a punter Wednesday as he continued preparations for Saturday's exhibition clash against the San Francisco Forty Niners.

Saban also lost receiver John Love, a free agent from North Texas State.

SCHOOL'S OUT TOMORROW

Graduation Day For Young Sailors

By RON LENT

The Sausalito and St. Francis yacht clubs' junior sailing program for boys and girls aged 11 through 18 has made its maiden voyage on Richardson Bay and concludes tomorrow.

The joint undertaking, geared to increase Marin County and San Francisco interest in this reportedly inexpensive sport, will start anew next summer, instructors Bob Smith, 19, and Jeff Stine, 16, claim.

The two San Mateo residents believe that Los Angeles enjoys an edge over San Francisco in this sport, "and we want to change that," they said.

With that in mind, the pair of St. Francis Yacht Club members embarked on a youth drive to bridge the L.A. gap. Finding San Francisco Bay too windy and foggy for beginning skippers, they worked out an agreement with the Sausalito Y.C. whereby the Marin organization would supply the boats and act as hosts.

This idea was readily acceptable to both, thus the project got its start in June. As the two-month program nears conclusion, Smith and Stine concur that, "Apparently there are just not enough people up here interested," though 120 turned out. They had expected more.

However, this seemingly adverse reality will not dampen their youthful enthusiasm. "We still think it is good for kids. Here kids who want to learn the proper ways of sailing and racing can do just that," Smith comments.

For $15, students receive 20 hours of instruction which includes lectures, sailing and examinations. Participants are divided into beginning, intermediate and advanced classes containing no more than 15 students.

In the introductory class, Stine notes, "We teach them about the boat, safety rules, its parts and how to assemble it. In the intermediate level, we begin to explain racing rules and run actual races.

"A trophy goes to the winner of the intermediate regatta," he added.

Smith, an engineering student, points out that the program also instills "self reliance" into the pupils.

After listing all the first-year program's virtues, Smith mused that the sport is often misunderstood.

First, he began, it is an inexpensive sport. "Why, a 16-foot boat costing $1,000 can be raced around the entire region. That's much less than car racing. A small sailboat like the one we use here costs around $190 and can be raced all over the Bay Area."

Secondly, Stine interjected, "This sport is well organized. They have professional racing in Australia. Businesses, which sponsor various boats advertise on the ship sails."

Neither thought the professional idea would catch on in North America, as yet. "But it may someday because the sport allows you to travel all over the world to compete and offers a type of brotherhood," Smith feels.

Apparently, Smith has been bitten by the brotherhood bug, because he is working overtime to infect the sport's spirit on Marin County residents.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Long-Term Profit Seen For Oil Firm

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. About 5 months ago, I bought shares of Imperial Oil at around $19. Now having a seven-point gain, I am wondering whether I should hold or sell and take the profit. What do you advise? — P.M.

A. Hold, for two reasons. First, since you have held these shares less than six months, you will pay a substantial capital gains tax if you sell your holdings now. Second, and more important, Imperial Oil shares carry additional potential for appreciation.

Imperial, 70 per cent owned by Standard Oil of New Jersey, is the largest producer of crude oil and the largest refiner and marketer of petroleum products in Canada. Well-positioned in the Canadian Arctic, specifically the MacKenzie Delta, Imperial offers excellent participation in Canada's rapidly emerging role as a future North American energy source.

While the dollars and cents part of the Arctic payoff is several years away, Imperial's present operations are generating record profits. For the first half of 1971 the company reported a hefty 43 per cent gain in earnings to 50 cents per share, up from 35 cents in 1969's similar period. With better product prices, increased exports and rising production expected to prevail, Imperial should remain on the right profit track.

Q. Practically all of the letters in your column deal with questions on medium-priced or high-priced stocks. I only have a few hundred dollars to invest and wish you would recommend some low-priced issues that have appreciation potential. — P.I.

A. Generally, but admittedly not always, low price means low quality. Occasionally, but not frequently, one of these types of stocks turns out to be a bargain. In comparison to the one stock which may skyrocket, there are a score or more which sink ingloriously into oblivion.

I am very reluctant to make any general or specific recommendations on low-priced, speculative stocks because it may lead to the purchase of such by individuals, like yourself, who can ill afford to suffer any financial loss.

Stock Gains Give Way To Profit Grab

NEW YORK (UPI)—The stock market, after four consecutive advances, gave way to profit taking today. Some weakness in stocks also was attributed to new softness in the dollar at money markets overseas.

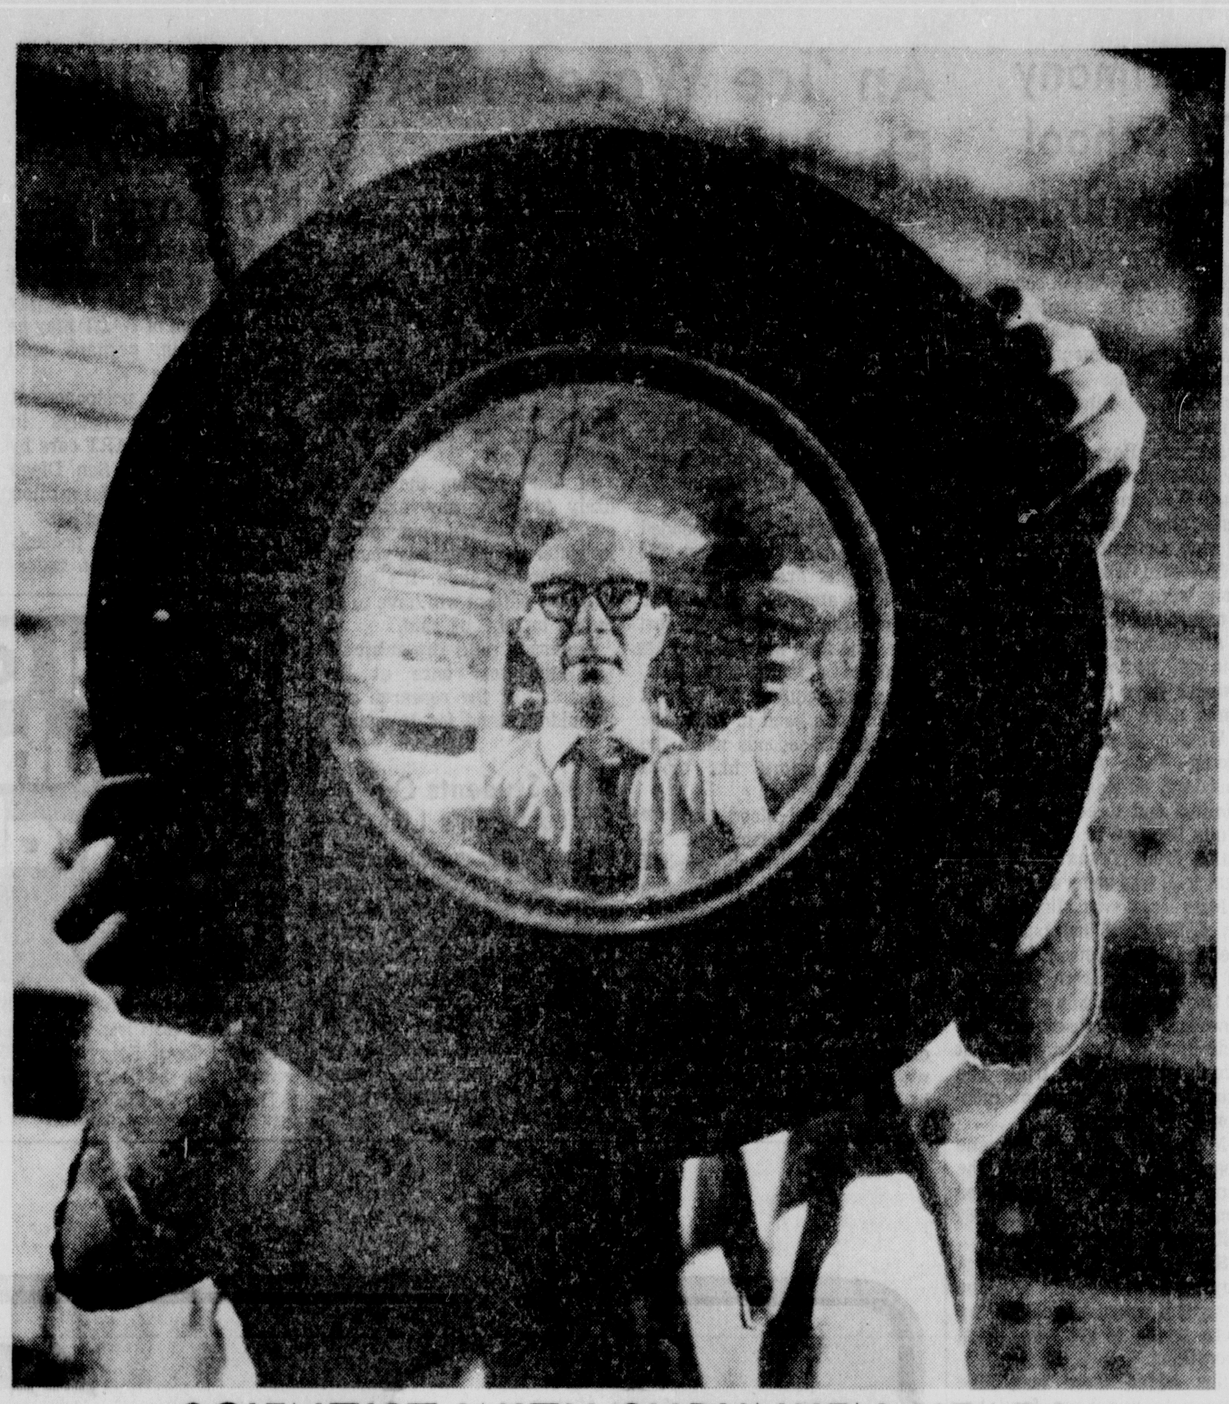
Standard & Poor's 500 stock index showed a loss of 0.51 at 99.90, while declines topped advances, 738 to 417, among the 1,484 issues on the tape.

Money dealers in London said they saw no end in sight to the dollar's setback. A portion of President Nixon's new economic program allowed for the dollar to "float", letting it seek its own level against other world currencies.

Declines outscored advances by almost a two-to-one margin on the American Stock Exchange. Turnover was moderate.

Among the most active Amex issues were McCulloch Oil down slightly on 27,000 shares, Conchemco Inc. up a point on 20,000 shares, and United Brands warrants about steady on a volume of more than 12,000.

On the Big Board, Walt Disney, Gulf, Mobile & Ohio Railroad and Superior Oil fell 2 or more. Down a point or so were Bausch & Lomb, SCM Corp., Uniroyal, Avon Products, Atlantic Richfield, Control Data, Burroughs, Texas Instruments, Polaroid, and Itek Corp.



SCIENTIST WITH SHRUNKEN HEAD?

The head of physicist M. J. Hurwitz is "shrunk" by an acoustic lens, used to focus sound waves in the same way that an ordinary magnifying lens focuses light waves. Used by scientists at the Westinghouse Research Laboratory in Pittsburgh, Pa., for experiments on "seeing" through solids or liquids with sound, the plastic lens reduces images when used with light.

A New Method Of Financing Rec Land

SAN FRANCISCO (BW) — A new method of financing recreational real estate development in California was announced yesterday by BankAmerica Corp.

The corporation's newest subsidiary, Western America Financial Inc., has started operations which emphasize the purchase of the paper of real estate developers.

"Our intention is to fill a gap in the present financing of developers," explained Robert D. Syer, subsidiary president.

A veteran of 40 years of varied experience in the financial and building industries and currently a senior vice president with Bank of America, Syer said:

"Western America Financial is primarily interested in helping developers whose past record clearly demonstrates concern for the environment.

"We will make special efforts to finance developers who stress a carefully thought-out approach to recreational planning as opposed to a haphazard approach."

Syer added that WAFI, which is based in San Francisco, will operate in other far western states besides California.

Initial capitalization of $1 million will be increased as operations of the BankAmerica subsidiary expand.

WRONG BARNEY: I must apologize to Barnard (Barney) Whitehill for taking him out of New York Life Insurance Co. last week and placing him with Nutrilite Products, Inc. — and also to Bernard (Barney) Seligman for leaving him out of the picture entirely. It was the latter Barney who attended the Nutrilite distributors conference in Anaheim recently — not the first.

LAWRENCE L. LUCHETTI of San Rafael, president of Luchetti Meat Co., San Francisco, has been elected president of the National Institute of Locker and Freezer Provisioners. Last year he served as treasurer and he has been a director for two years. The Luchetti family has been in the meat business in the Bay Area since 1923. Last year the operation was expanded into freezer provisioning service.

HARRY LEES of Greenbrae, vice president of Fireman's Fund American Insurance Companies, will retire Sept. 1 after 44 years in the insurance business. He started his insurance career with the National Bureau of Casualty Underwriters in 1927, advancing to assistant manager of the automobile department. He was with U.S. Fidelity and Guaranty Co. from 1934 to 1940 when he joined American Automobile Insurance Co. When American was acquired by Fireman's Fund in 1963 he was elected vice president of Fireman's Fund American.

Since the first of this year, building permits have been taken out for the construction of about 280 pools, which averages better than one a day. Anthony Pools seems to be the heavy builder this year, with about a third of all pool construction to its credit. The remaining two-thirds was handled by eight major pool contractors and about 13 smaller contractors doing the work as part of their home building.

WINDOW DISPLAY at Cal Marin Title Co., San Rafael currently features the oils and pastels of Marcella Winer of Mill Valley. She is a member of local and western art groups and has had numerous one-man shows.

SEC Will Conduct Probe Of Market

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Securities and Exchange Commission yesterday announced plans to investigate a possible merger of all stock exchanges into a single national stock market and other reforms to protect the 100 million American stockholders.

SEC Chairman William J. Casey said broad public hearings will open here Oct. 12 into "what changes are needed." A SEC source characterized the hearings, expected to last weeks and possibly months, as "possibly the most significant ever held by the SEC."

The hearings will consider sweeping changes proposed in a five-month study conducted by William McChesney Martin, the former chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, and a former president of the New York Stock Exchange.

The Martin report calls for the merger of the New York, American and Regional Stock Exchanges into one national securities market.

Going beyond the Martin study, Casey said the hearings will consider whether huge financial institutions which hold billions of dollars worth of stock — such as mutual funds.

The world's largest mutual fund operator, Investor Diversified Services, has applied for membership on the New York Exchange, threating a suit if its application is denied.

Casey said recommendations for legislation may grow out of the SEC study, which will be held either by the commission itself or by an examiner appointed by its members.

Casey said reforms are needed because some of the most critical problems in the industry are being resolved "not as a duly deliberated matter of broad public policy, but as an expedient to effect short run savings or to settle or to avoid private lawsuits."

He said the commission has an obligation "to maintain a market in which some 30 million individual shareholders are protected and can have confidence, which will protect and establish fair values for the pension, insurance and mutual funds interests of another 70 million Americans, which will contribute to the economic progress of 207 million Americans and which will attract capital from other parts of the world."

In addition to studying a possible merger of stock exchanges and membership for large institutions, Casey said the hearings will consider the need for additional disclosure of information on prices, volume and quotations in all markets through a composite tape or otherwise as well as other significant questions.

Martin, in his report, proposed:

—Elimination of the paper stock certificate, presumably through computerization of ownership records. This would solve the growing problem of certificate thefts.

—Greater use of electronic equipment so as to eventually eliminate the familiar paper cluttered trading floor.

—Development of a ticker tape which would report on transactions on all stock exchanges.

Greater Fire Safety Plan Backed

Directors of the Tiburon Fire Protection board have tentatively agreed to the contents of a planned ordinance to require installation of sprinkler systems and fire alarms in many of the city's downtown businesses.

Wellman H. Topham, board secretary, said the proposal was turned over to the fire marshal and Marin County Counsel's office Tuesday night for further study. First reading of the ordinance will be held at the district board's Sept. 8 meeting, he said.

The regulation would require sprinklers and alarms in most businesses on Main Street, along the water and in other establishments to be designated by the fire chief, according to the secretary.

He said parts of downtown Tiburon have very poor fire ratings and, as a result, high insurance costs. If firms have alarms and sprinklers, he said insurance rates will go down considerably and the cheaper premiums will eventually pay for the cost of installation.

Topham, who could not say what the cost of the systems would be, said merchants will have to pay for their own sprinklers and alarms.

Mammoth Mendenhall Glacier, two miles wide and 12 miles long, is located near Juneau, Alaska.

Testimony Of School For Murder

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Charles (Tex) Watson conducted a school for murder at the Charles Manson clan's Death Valley encampment after the Tate-La-Bianca slayings, a prosecution witness testified yesterday.

Barbara Hoyt, 19, a former member of the nomadic tribe, said Watson taught her and three other young women how to stab victims.

She said Watson's instructions were "not to stab straight —to turn the knife up and move it around to cut up more stuff." She said he told the girls they "would have to kill when we came down to it."

Watson is on trial for the seven Tate and LaBianca murders. He was not tried with Manson and three other defendants because he fought extradition from Texas until after that trial was underway.

Miss Hoyt, was allegedly fed an LSD-spiked hamburger in Honolulu by Manson followers to prevent her from testifying at the first trial. She recovered, however, and discussed the activities of the "family" at length at Manson's trial. The murder school was not mentioned, however.

Miss Hoyt said she became angry at Watson after the family went to an abandoned ranch in Death Valley in 1969 following the Tate murders.

She explained Watson "kept buying newspapers" and she thought it unusual because "we were trying to get away from everything."

She added there was little money to purchase food because Watson kept spending it on newspapers.

May Cut Costs

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Paramount studios is considering the possibility of lowering overhead costs by moving its studios to 20th Century-Fox where the two film companies will share facilities.

An 'Ice Water Test' For Heart Disease

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (UPI) — A heart research team at the University of Minnesota has published the findings of a 23-year study which indicates a simple, 60-second "ice water test" may reveal whether a man is likely to develop coronary heart disease.

But a member of the team said yesterday he doubts it will be used extensively because it's painful.

The research team, headed by Dr. Ancel Keys, gave 279 Minneapolis area businessmen the ice water test in 1947 and studied their health until last year. The men were 40-50 years old at the beginning of the test.

The test requires the patient to place one hand in 32 degree water for 60-seconds while the doctor monitors his blood pressure.

Those whose blood pressure shot upward during the 60-seconds were two-and-one-half times more likely to develop heart disease than those whose blood pressure remained near normal, the study said.

Of the 67 men with a high reaction to the test, 27 per cent have developed coronary disease, while only 11 per cent with a normal reaction have had heart attacks, the team reported in the current archives of internal medicine.

But a member of the research team, Dr. Joseph T. Anderson, said the test probably is of little value.

"This test is really objectionable," Anderson said. "Those who went through it completely refused to go through it a second time."

"I don't believe the test is likely to have any extensive use. When you put your hand in ice water for 60-seconds you get a tremendous pain. It's something the patient will have to be forced to do," he said.

Anderson said the subjects took the test once at the beginning of the research and "wouldn't stand for it again."

Area Students On Chico Dean's List

Three Marin students and one from Southern Sonoma have made the dean's honor list at Chico State College by maintaining at least a 3.5 grade point average for 24 units.

Linda Bea Christinson of Mill Valley, Valerie Lee Lyons of Novato, Diane E. Zellensky of San Rafael and Kim Yvonne Johnson of Petaluma were included in the list.

BART Hit By Delay; No Cars

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Directors of Bay Area Rapid Transit District said yesterday that operation of BART may be delayed again, perhaps until spring, 1972.

The possible postponement was blamed on delays in production of 25 BART cars by the Rohr Corp. of San Diego which has a $67 million contract to perform the job.

Picketing of BART projects because of construction industry strikes, plus uncertain effects of President Nixon's wage-price freeze order, also were said to be slowing progress.

The system's first section, from Fremont to Oakland, originally was secheduled to open in September, but that date has been pushed back to January. The Concord and Richmond lines were planned for May, 1972, with full transbay service six months later.

B. R. Stokes, BART general manager, would not predict the length of new delays, but he offered possible budget changes based on two and four-month periods.

Although Stokes warned against firm forecasts, Nello Biancho of Richmond, a director, said he doesn't expect to see Fremont-Oakland operating until May and probably later.

"There's something wrong with this operation," said William Blake, a San Francisco director.

"We haven't forced Rohr, " he said. "There are too many nice guys in BART."

Stokes said everything possible was being done, and legal action against Rohr might only delay the work. Some of the directors, who were meeting as the board's administration committee, said the BART staff might be ordered at a Sept. 9 meeting "to get tough" with Rohr.
